CAPITOL CASES ON TRIAL

This Privilege Refused to all the Other Defendants

FAVORITE SEPARATION

The Alacrity With Which the Commonwealth Agreed to a Separate Trial was a Surprise to the Other Accused.

ALL THE JURORS ARE SELECTED.

Harrisburg, January 28th.—The feature of the first day of the trial of the capitol prosecutions which began in the Dauphin county court before President Judge Kunkle this morning, was the agreement of the Commonwealth to a separate trial for Architect Joseph M. Huston. The Commonwealth objected to the motions of Huston's for co-defendants for separate trials, which motions were overruled by the court.

The action of the Commonwealth in agreeing to a separate trial for Huston has given rise to a rumor that the architect will turn state's evidence and tell all he knows of the alleged frauds in the furnishing of the new capitol.

Counsel for the Commonwealth decline to affirm or deny this rumor.

"Wait and see", is all they will say.

George S. Graham, of counsel for Huston, said tonight that it was not unusual for the court to grant a severance in conspiracy cases. Mr. Graham also said that Huston had been subpoenaed by the other defendants and must remain here during the trial of those cases.

"If Mr. Huston is called to the stand knowing himself to be an innocent man," Mr. Graham continued, "and as we know him to be, he will tell the truth. He has not yet been subpoenaed as a witness by the Commonwealth. Of course we know nothing about the way the Commonwealth will conduct the case."

The alacrity with which the Commonwealth agreed to a separate trial for Huston evidently was a surprise to the attorneys for his co-defendants.

Sanderson, Snyder and Mathues were in court and consulted frequently with their attorneys while the jury was being selected. The entire day was taken up with the futile efforts of the attorneys for the four defendants to obtain separate trials and the selection of the jury.

DEATH OF FRANK ROBB

Dies of Consumption After an Illness of Two Years.

Frank Robb fell a victim to consumption two years ago and about three months ago became so ill that he had to quit work. Since that time his condition gradually grew worse until death claimed him last Thursday morning. Deceased was born in Nittany where he resided all his life. He was about 51 years of age and had been in Bellefonte working as Foreman of construction in the Commercial Telephone Company for a number of years. He was a member of the Evangelical church.

He was married at Hublersburg. He was a man well known and respected throughout the county, and had worked for the Commercial Telephone Company for about nine years. When he got so ill about three months ago he went to his sister's home at Bloomsburg and it was there that he died.

Surviving the deceased are his wife, Jane, and the following brothers and sisters: Irvin Robb, of Wilkesbarre; Mrs. Rebecca Wise, of Berwick; and Mrs. Gertrude Mark, of Berwick. The funeral services were held at the house this morning at 10 o'clock. Interment was made at Snydertown.

Price of Milk Reduced to Six Cents.

All the milk dealers in Bellefonte have decided to reduce the price of milk from 8 to 6 cents a quart, Although the price of grain is still away up yet they have been able to make reasonable rates with the farmers who supply many of them and have decided to give the consumer the benefit of the reduction. This will be good news to their consumers.

BACK TO OLD RATE

February 1st Will See Resumption of Two and a Half Cent Rate.

The supreme court of the state of Pennsylvania having decided that the act of the legislature fixing a maximum passenger fare of two cents a mile is inapplicable to the Pennsylvania railroad, its branches and leased lines, the company will on February 1st restore the schedule of fares which have prevailed from November 1st, 1906—when the company voluntarily reduced its maximum one way rate to two and one half cents a mile—until October 1st, 1907. On the latter date, when the two-cent fare act became effective, all one-way rates were reduced to conform to the law as it stood.

The system of passenger fares which prevailed prior to October 1st, will after February 1st, again apply to all portions of the Pennsylvania railroad within the state of Pennsylvania, including the Buffalo and Allegheny Valley, the Philadelphia and Erie, and the United Railways of New Jersey Grand Divisions.

As, however, the act is held to apply to the Pennsylvania railroad and its branches, only the two cent rate will, until cases now pending before the courts are decided, be retained on these portions of the Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington and the Northern Central railroads within the state of Pennsylvania, as well as on the Bedford division, and the Lancaster and Quarryville branch.

The company will also resume the sale of 180 trip three month tickets, 100 ride tickets (good within a year), and all other commutation privileges which were withdrawn pending the decision of the courts. Although the two-cent rate will apply to the Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington railroad, the company will after February 1st again accord to patrons of that company all commutation privileges which were withdrawn October 1st 1907.

Pending the decision of the courts, the Pennsylvania railroad company and its affiliated lines east of Pittsburg, Buffalo and Erie withdrew the issuance of orders for special rate to clergymen living along these lines. Beginning March 1st, clerical orders will again be issued, the amount of work involed in preparing them making this delay unavoidable.

Pennsy's Testimonial on Cereal Needed.

Another of former Governor Pennypacker's idols has been shattered. This time it is his favorite breakfast food, labeled "A muscle-giving cereal."

Pennypacker's fondness for it has resulted in the arrest of a Harrisburg grocer on a charge of violating the pure food laws. When Pennypacker came to Harrisburg he persuaded the grocer to procure for him this "muscle-giving cerea.," which the merchant supplied regularly to the Pennypacker family. State Dairy and Food Commissioner Foust now alleges the cereal is misbranded, and brought suit against the grocer. State Chemist Frear testified Friday that an analysis of the food showed that it was pure," but that it did not contain the "muscle-giving" ingredients.

Pennypacker will probably be called to testify as to the cereal's effect upon his muscles.

Kind Words From a Friend.

MY DEAR MR. TUTEN:

I simply wish to write to say that I very much appreciate your paper, "The Bellefonte Republican," that you are still sending to me. I appreciate both the motive that prompts you, as well as the paper itself. It is thoroughly read and enjoyed. I sincerely thank you.

When I resided in Bellefonte you always treated me in the most cordially manner, and I always valued your friendship. I shall always have the most pleasant recollections of yourself, and your sound Republican paper. No one of your many friends rejoiced over your election more than I did. Had I been still a resident of Bellefonte your majority would have been one more.

I wish you continued prosperity and abundant success in life.

With best wishes and high personal regard, I remain,

Sincerely Your Friend,
REV. H. C. HOLLOWAY.

[Mr. Holloway was formerly a minister of the Lutheran church of this town and during the time that he spent in this vicinity he made many friends who will all be glad to hear that he is now located at Harrisburg and prospering in a manner which shows that he still retains all his former vigor—ED.]

ACQUITTED OF MURDER

Jury Was Out 3 Hours Verdict Caused a Demonstration

DEFENDANT'S PLEA

Was that He Had Killed Harry Ferree in Mistake for a Burglar on November 5th.

COURT RULED OUT THE LETTERS

Philadelphia, Pa., January 24.—After a trial of three days Andrew Jackson Detsch, who was charged with murdering Harry Ferree in a boarding house last November, was late Friday afternoon acquitted. The jury was out nearly three hours. The announcement of the jury's verdict caused an enthusiastic demonstration in the court room. The killing of Ferree was sensational, and owing to the peculiar circumstances surrounding it, the case created great interest throughout the city. Detsch claimed he killed Ferree in mistake for a burglar, and the jury took this view of the case.

Detsch, who is 23 years of age, lived with his wife and child in an up-town boarding house. On the night of November 5th policemen heard several shots and traced them to the house. They forced an entrance and on the third floor hallway in front of the door of the Detsch apartments, they found Ferree dead with three bullet wounns in the body. He was in his stocking feet. Ferree was about 50 years of age and had occupied a room on the second floor. In the bed room occupied by the Detsch's the police found the young husband and his wife, who is 23 years old, and their 18-months-old child. Detsch told the policemen that he heard some one trying to get in the room and thinking it was a burglar shot four times through the door with a heavy calibre revolver, not knowing that the man on the outside was a fellow boarder.

The police were inclined to accept this explanation, but in searching the personal effects of Ferree, they found many letters that had passed between Ferree and Mrs. Detsch and a number of suggestive photographs. The police then charged Detsch with having deliberately killed Ferree. They contended that Detsch learned of alleged misconduct between his wife and Ferree, and that he planned to kill the latter. Counsel for the defendant in his closing argument to the jury said that he did not appeal to the unwritten law but the defense stood on Detsch's statement that he took Ferree for a burglar. Counsel said that there is no unwritten law in Pennsylvania, and that "the so-called unwritten law is not worth the paper it is not written upon."

The Storm Rages in the Metropolis.

On Friday January 24th the city of New York suffered from the worst storm in years. Traffic during the rush hours of the morning was tied up with five inches of snow.

The suffering on the East side is intense. Thousands of families are without fuel or the means of securing it. The home for the city poor is overflowed with inmates. Severe storms are raging on the Atlantic cost. A large fishing fleet was reported in distress at Atlantic city early Friday. Later, all communication was cut off.

One man was frozen to death another blinded by the snow, walked off the ferry slipped into the river and was drowned. Many were picked up on the streets more dead than alive and hurried to the hospitals.

Had You Ever Thought of it?

From Boston comes the theory that the difference in the color of people's eyes is a protective adaptation to surroundings. Natives from regions where blue light is predominant—Swedes, Norwegions and sailors, for instance—have blue eyes, while near the equator, or in sondy lands like South Africa, where intense yellow light is experienced, the eyes take a rich, dark yellow hue, as those of the Malays and the Kafirs, Spaniards and Italians. Generally it is true that the French have dark eyes, the English gray and the Scotch blue.

THE PRIMARY ELECTION.

Democrats and Republicans Name Candidates for Borough and Ward Offices.

On Saturday evening the Republicans and Democrats held their Primary Election for the nomination of candidates for the various boro and ward offices to be elected at the February election. Everything passed off quietly, the only contests being for Overseer-of-the-Poor Auditor and Council. Wm. B. Rankin will have easy sailing for Treasurer, being nominated by the Republicans without opposition. No democratic candidate was named against him, neither was there a candidate for Auditor named against M. A. Jackson, who will be the Republican nominee. The democrats nominated P. J. Garrity for Overseer-of-the-Poor. His opponent will be James H. Rine, of the West ward.

The warmest contest took place in the West ward over the councilship. In the Democratic caucus, Dr. M. A. Kirk, defeated Peter Keichline for the nomination by the vote of 29 to 21. In the Republican caucus Darius Waite received the nomination by a vote of 32 to 17 for Kirk.

The tickets nominated in the boro are as follows:

REPUBLICAN.

North Ward—Judge of election, S. B. Miller; Inspector, George Williams. Council, Clement Dale; School Director; M. R. Johnson; Constable, Chas. Eckenroth.

The vote on Overseer in the North Ward was Kerns 56, Whippo 22, Rine 16, Auditor. Jackson 46, Curtin 48. Conferees, W. H. Derstine, Horace Musser and Edward L. Gates.

West Ward—Judge of Election, Isaac Thomas Sr., Inspector, J. Ellis Stine; Councilman, Darius Waite; School Director, Dr. A. W. Hafer; Constable, William Monsel.

The vote on Overseer in the West Ward was Rine 26, Whippo 19, Kerns 9, Auditor, Jackson 25, Curtin 23. The conferees were Allen Waite, Isaac Thomas, Jr., John D. Love.

South Ward—Judge of Election Thos. Donachy; Inspector, James Lowry; Councilman, Dr. E. S. Dorworth; School Director, no nomination; Constable; H. H. Montgomery.

DEMOCRAT.

North Ward—Judge of Election, J. H. Everhart; Inspector, John W. Lane; Council, J. C. Harper; School Director, Jas. A. B. Miller; Constable, Chas. Eckenroth.

West Ward—Judge of Election, A. Lukenbach; Inspector, Wm. Taylor; School Director, G. Ross Parker; Council, Dr. M. A. Kirk; Constable, Wm. Dawson.

South Ward—Judge of Election; George Doll; Inspector, H. J. Walkey, School Director, D. F. Fortney; Council, Fred Musser.

Bald Eagle Lady Dead.

Mrs. Daniel Eyer died at the home of her son, J. Hutchinson Eyer, Bald Eagle township Tuesday night of the infirmities of old age.

She was 82 years of age and was, until a short time previous to her demise, able to be about the home. Since the death of her husband she made her home with her son, at which place she died.

She was a consistent member of the Methodist church and exemplified the teachings of the Master in her daily life. She is survived by two sons, J. H. of Bald Eagle township, and William, of Avis.

Funeral services were conducted from her late home Friday at 1 p. m., by Rev. J. J. Resh of Lock Haven. Interment was made in Alien's cemetery.

A B. Brumbaugh.

Doctor Andrew Boelus Brumbaugh whose sudden and serious illness with appendicitis grew into such a critical condition that at last caused his removal for treatment and operation to the private hospital of Dr. Price, of Philadelphia, on last Friday night, died shortly after midnight on Monday morning. The operation occurred at 10 o'clock on Saturday morning but conditions were very unfortunate and little hope could be entertained for his recovery. Mrs. Brumbaugh and his daughter, Mrs. Silverthorn remained in Huntingdon, surrounded by many sympathizing friends, awaiting the news, while the son, Doctor Gaius and the nephew, Doctor M. G. Brumbaugh, stayed by the side of the dying Doctor.

Dr. Brumbaugh was one of Huntingdon's best known citizens and it will be sad news to many to hear of his death. The funeral services took place Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

FURNITURE CASE CALLED

Alleged Overcharges on Furniture to be Sifted by the State

HUSTON IS A MYSTERY

Scarlett Made Formal Presentation to the Jury This Morning, Outlining the Charges.

HUSTON MAY TURN STATE'S EVIDENCE.

Harrisburg, Jan. 28th.—Formal presentation of the first charge against the four defendants now on trial in connection with the alleged capitol "grafting" was made to the jury today by James Scarlett, chief assistant in the prosecution. The present hearing is in the famous "clothes press" case. Sanderson, Snyder, Mathues and Shumaker are charged with perpetrating funds aggregating $19,308.40 on contracts involving the payment of $49,417.80 for sofas, tables and clothes trees. Sanderson, the contractor furnished the goods. Snyder, former auditor general, is accused of not auditing the bills and Mathues, former tresurer, with paying the bills unaudited. Shumaker, former superintendent of grounds and buildings, is likewise accused of failure to audit Sanderson's bills and to have accepted the certification of Architect Huston without investigation.

Huston, who was yesterday granted a separate trial on the same charges is reported to have turned state's evidence and secrecy is maintained as to whether he has been subpoenaed by either side. If the four others are convicted he will not be in the list, and will have another chance for acquittal. If they are acquitted, the precedent will have been established, and there would be difficulty in having any other action taken in the case. So far as the charges against him are concerned, therefore, of the five men charged with looting the state treasury he has the best chance and should he appear as the star witness against the four others, sympathy will naturally be aroused for him when the case against him is called.

DEATH OF MISS HATTIE WILSON.

Died at the Bellefonte Hospital After an Illness of One Week.

Death has claimed Miss Hattie Wilson of High street and no more will she be enumerated among our charming ladies. On Saturday she drew her last fleeting breath as she passed from this life of toil and misery into the great beyond. For ten years she had been an efficient compositor in the office of the Centre Democrat and the sad news of her death will bring sorrow to her many friends. Deceased was born in this town on April 11, 1877, thus making her nearly thirty-one years of age. She was a faithful member of the Methodist church, always taking an active part in the church services. She had not been in the best of health for several years and on Saturday a week ago, was taken to the hospital where she died with appendicitis on Saturday after an illness of one week.

Surviving the deceased are her mother, Mrs. Emma P. Wilson, and the following brothers and sisters: John of Altoona, Lloyd, Edna and Wilbur of this place.

The funeral services were held in the Methodist church Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. James B. Stein officiated and interment was made in the Union cemetery.

At the Post Office.

The general delivery window of the post office is a rich field for a studen of human nature and almost every day humorous and some times sad incidents arise. Frequently a man calls for a letter and insists that there is one for him, although the clerk cannot find any. One man insisted that he mailed a letter three days before and that an answer must be here. He was asked to give the address where he sent the letter, and in doing so pulled the original letter from his pocket which he forgot to mail, although he was insisting there was an answer to it. Many put letters in the bones without a stamp and wonder why they don't receive a reply.

BELLEFONTE HOSPITAL COMPLETED.

The Equipment for the Operating Rooms Placed.

All the wards in the new addition of the Bellefonte hospital are now being used and still there is insufficient accommodation for all those who have made application to receive treatment. Miss Lois Calderwood, the competent and aggressive matron, has been very careful in devising ways and means whereby the greatest number of patients can receive the proper attention at the hands of the careful nurses. It can easily be seen that the larger proposed addition could be utilized to good advantages, and it is to be hoped that the next legislature will be generous enough to appropriate the money for its erection.

The operating room, although not the largest, is the finest to be found in any hospital in the state. The floor is laid in beautiful white tile while the sides to the height of five feet, are also inlaid with the same material. The corners are carved so that the room can be kept in a perfectly sanitary condition at all times. The large plate glass on the side gives ample light for the most delicate and arduous operations. The electrical appliances for night, or emergency operations, are of the best that can be secured. The equipments for the surgical department has arrived and has been placed in position. The various sterilizers are large and of the most modern design. Some of the parts work automatically thus saving much time and labor. The table in the operating room has all the equipments and conveniences necessary for any kind of an operation. The instruments are of the finest quality and the collection large enough for any emergency.

The following inscription will be found on a brass plate on the wall: "In loving memory of Mrs. Katharine Wilson Curtin," this group of rooms—operating, sterilizing, etherizing and accident—is furnished and equipped by her grandchildren.

The old operating room on the second floor of the old building will be transformed into a public ward, Col. James P. Coburn, president of the First National Bank, has kindly consented to furnish this apartment with beds and everything that is necessary.

The first operation took place on Wednesday afternoon of last week under the skillful hands of Dr. Geo. F. Harris, whose children assisted in giving to the hospital this useful equipment. A number of the staff physicians were present and the operation was a success. This was the opening of this department of the new hospital, which places the institution on a bar with the best of its kind in the state. The hospital is gaining in popularity, and with the proper encouragement from the people of Bellefonte and Centre county it will become even more useful and efficient.

Thaw Trial Adjourned.

New York, Jan. 24—The Thaw trial has been adjourned until Monday.

The storm this morning was responsible for the delay in the Thaw trial. Attorney Littletown, upon his arrival at court, announced the failure of the arrival of the steamship Adriatic at her dock, which prevented the appearance of three doctors and a nurse from Rome, Paris and London, whom he expected to examine today. He therefore asked for the adjournment of court until Monday.

District Attorney Jerome wanted the names of the witnesses aboard the Adriatic, but Littleton objected to giving out the names and didn't want them met at the dock, and was annoyed at Jeromes objection. Jerome retorted that he wanted to cable to Europe to ascertain if they were "shysters, charlatans of men of reliability," but Littleton was obdurate, and Justice Dowling finally announced an adjournment of court until Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

Miss Ida Gummo Dead.

Miss Ida Gummo, daughter of John E. Gummo, of Beech Creek township, died at her father's home. Monday evening of acute bright's disease, aged 23 years.

The deceased was as well as usual on Sunday and visited a neighbor's home Mr. and Mrs. George Bitner, and took supper. On Monday morning her sister called her as usual and getting no response, she entered her room and found her unconscious. A physician was summoned but nothing could be done to revive her and she lingered in that condition throughout the day, dying about 6 o'clock.

Her funeral took place Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Aller officiating, and burial being made in Fearon's cemetery

MURDER IN FIRST DEGREE

Jury Quickly Fixed Verdict Upon Donley Saturday

SENTENCE GIVEN TODAY

The Murderer of His Little Niece Hears his Doom With Stoic Indifference.

JURY OUT A LITTLE OVER AN HOUR

DONLEY ON TRIAL.

With the opening of court Wednesday morning, the common wealth began the presentation of testimony by which it expects to secure the convention of William Donley, charged with the murder of his niece. Link by link the chain of circumstantial evidence is being forged about the prisoner, the defense contesting all points and endeavoring to bring out every weak spot in a way that will leave an opening and a foundation for the attack that will be made by them when their turn comes in the trial. Beginning with the disappearance of Mary Donley from the home of her grandmother on the evening of the day when the wedding bells rang out so merrily for her aunt, the attorneys for the prosecution are tracing the movements of William Donley from the time he is alleged to have left the house in company with his niece until his return later in the night with his brother, who found him in a saloon after he had been seen and recognized by others in different parts of the town. One witness in the outline indicated, saw him three times, heard a child's scream, then the apparently smothered cries of a child, and at that time he was going in the direction of the city dump on which the dead body of Mary Donley was found. Following such testimony as this comes the so-called confession made to his friend, young Kelly, in which Donley is alleged to have said: "I picked her up and carried her down by the river." What the defense will bring forward to offset this testimony is still a matter of conjecture, but of their strong belief in securing an acquittal there seems little doubt from the confidence displayed by Attorneys Kress and McCormick.

One of the pathetic features of Wednesday morning's session was the presence on the witness stand of Michael Donley, Jr., father of the murdered girl, and the brother of the man who is accused of the terrible crime. Mr. Donley was the first witness called, and as he took the chair to testify he was directly in front of his brother, sitting at the table with his counsel. The prisoner's expression did not change, as he occasionally looked at his brother, but the greater part of the time he kept his eyes fixed on the table in front of him. The witness had the undoubted sympathy of the audience in the ordeal through which he had to pass. Mr. Donley was kept in the witness chair only about fifteen minutes, and as soon as the examination was completed he left the room.

The interest in the Donley murder trial at Lock Haven continues at fever heat, and two thirds of those seeking admission to the court room are unable to get in.

All Thursday afternoon and forenoon the commonwealth has been weaving the chain of circumstantial evidence about the prisoner, by following him from the time he left his home with Mary Donley, until he went to Freeburg's saloon that fateful evening. The most sensational and incriminating evi was given by Michael Donley, Jr., a five years' old boy, brother of the murdered girl, who last saw his sister alive as she left the yard with her uncle and went down the alley and disappeared. Mrs. Zeigler heard the cries of a child, and on going to the rear of her lot she saw a man whom she recognized as William Donley. The accused was later seen at Drocton, near the dump, then along the railroad, and was tracked up to the saloon.

When court adjourned at noon, the star witness for the prosecution, Edward Kelly, who told of Donley's confession to him, was on the stand under a most rigid cross examination by defendants counsel, who attacked the witness' credibility and partially succeeded in their efforts, for Kelley admitted telling different statements under oath in one particular. The apparently complete chain of evidence as given by the other witnesses could not be shaken by the counsel for the defendant.

The clothing worn by little Mary on the night she was murdered, was shown to the jury Thursday afternoon and identified by witnesses. This gruesome bit of evidence occasioned quite a wrangle among the opposing counsel.

DONLEY ON THE STAND.

After calling one witness on Friday forenoon the commonwealth in the Donley murder trial at Lock Haven announced that they would rest their side of the case. Without any preliminaries, the defense immediately began to present their side of the case. But two witnesses had been sworn when Mr. McCormick called William Donley, the prisoner, on the stand. As Donley arose from his seat and stepped into the witness box, a wave of suppressed excitement swept over the court room, for the query had frequently been made—"Is Donley going on the stand in his own defense?" It was felt that if he was innocent he would no doubt be called to the witness stand, to prove to the jury where he spent the time from 5 30 o'clock, when he left his mother's home until he put in his appearance at Freeburg's saloon. But, unfortunately for himself, it cannot be said that he made a favorable impression on the jury or any one in the court room, and in fact did not add any to his chances for escaping the gallows. He denied being at the rear of Mrs. Zeigler's lot, or that he was at Drocton that night, or that he accompanied his neice, Mary Donley, from his mother's home that night. He remembered distinctly a few other occurrences of that night, but his answer to four questions out of five put to him by Mr. Brungard on cross examination was, "I don't know," or "I can't remember." He was on the stand for an hour and a half and stood the ordeal fairly well.

MURDER IN FIRST DEGREE.

Lock Haven, January 26.—"Guilty of murder in the first degree" was the verdict returned Sunday evening against William Donley, who now stands convicted of one of the most atrocious crimes in the history of Clinton county, the murder of his nine-year-old niece, Mary Donley, of Renovo, daughter of his own brother. On Tuesday, October 29, the heinous crime was perpetrated. The people of Renovo, ably seconded by the Clinton county authorities, lost scarcely an hour in starting a great effort to bring to justice the offender, and the conviction of Donley, on a line of uncommonly clear and convincing circumstantial evidence, is generally considered a great triumph of justice. The task of the commonwealth was no easy one and the trial was carried through at great cost to the county, but the Clinton county people universally approved of all that has been done in the interest of the protection of society.

A few minutes over an hour was all the time that the jury required to reach its verdict. It was just about 5 o'clock when the twelve men retired from the court room to deliberate; at 6:15 each man of the twelve had voted for conviction, and after the court had been summoned the verdict was returned at 6:55 The ringing of the court house bell called hundreds of persons to the streets and the news of Donley's doom was soon spread broadcast. It was between dense lines of people that the prisoner, after hearing the verdict, was marched back to the jail. There was no demonstration.

Saturday was by no means one of the least interesting of the six days taken up with the trial of Donley. Counsel for the defense made a good fight for their client, despite the fact that they had nothing substantial to stand upon. When Donley heard the verdict that means the law will take his life in expiation of his crime, he gave little evidence of his feeling, his attitude being much as it had been throughout the trial.

The commonwealth closed its case in the same clear and convincing manner in which its damaging chain of evidence was seduced. The court charged the jury fairly and well. When the fate of Donley was placed in the hands of his peers it was after a trial that is generally considered to have been a fair and impartial one.

DURUM WHEAT.

Comparison of This Variety With Our Common Grain.

Professor Shepard of South Dakota has recently issued a report on durum wheat, in which it is shown that Kubanka contains less bran than Red Fife, that more flour is made from Kubanka and that the flour contains a larger amount of the proteid of the wheat than does flour made from northern spring wheat. Baking tests, however, show that spring wheat makes a larger loaf and contains a larger amount of gliadin in the gluten than is the case with Kubanka wheat. Taking it all in all, however, Professor

CROSS SECTION OF WHEAT GRAINS.
[1. Flinty grain grown under dry land farming; 2. Half starchy grain.]

Shepard states that "for the yield, hardiness, flour yield, protein distribution and the quality of both bread and macaroni durum wheat, especially Kubanka, is to be recommended for general use."

Several years ago Clifford Richardson of the bureau of chemistry published the results of several hundred analyses of wheat grown in the various states of the Union, from which it appears that the average protein content of our American spring and winter wheat (Triticum vulgare) is 12.2 per cent, whereas the average proteid content of considerably over 100 samples of durum analyzed by the writer is 14.7, or 2.5 per cent more than that of the common wheat.

Durum wheat grown in Algeria contains only from 8 to 10 per cent of water. Common wheat grown in countries adapted thereto contains from 10 to 16 per cent of water, according to the moisture of the atmosphere. The difference in the water content was sufficient to make the French officials investigate the advisability of buying wheat from dry land regions, which wheats would contain less moisture, and thus not only a large saving would be made in the cost of transportation, but more wheat per bushel would be actually obtained.

The cuts here shown represent cross sections of wheat grown under varying conditions. Fig. 1 represents a durum grown on land not irrigated, being flinty, hard and translucent and containing over 18 per cent of protein. No. 2 is an intermediate grain, showing both the starchy and the flinty characteristics. No. 3 represents a grain from the same kind of seed as that which produced No. 1 and grown on adjacent land, but under excessive irrigation, the result being a soft, mealy, dull looking grain somewhat shorter than No. 1 and containing 12 per cent of protein. It has lost its durum characteristics entirely and is no more suitable for making good macaroni than are our soft wheats.

STARCHY SAMPLE.
[Grown under excessive irrigation.]

Sample No. 1 has the dark amber color of the flinty grain. No. 2 is an intermediate grain and No. 3 the light, starchy grain.

An Ideal Climate.

The state of Oregon is in the same latitude as South Dakota and the New England states, but the Japan current equalizes the temperature and gives Oregon an ideal climate. All kinds of forage crops are grown without irrigation except in a very small area in southeastern Oregon.

Tuberculosis In Pigs.

In view of the increasing anxiety about tuberculosis in pigs, every precaution should be taken to know definitely that all milk and other animal products fed to pigs are free from tuberculosis.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

For Shirt Waists.

There is nothing prettier for shirt waists than silk faced poplin, for the goods can be neatly plaited, tucked and made into practically any dainty shirt waist from the plain tailored one to the dressy affair with lace or velvet garniture. The white poplin has countless advantages. It sells for about 50 cents a yard and possesses innumerable good qualities which make it valuable to the economical woman. The material washes beautifully and may be ironed while perfectly dry and has a soft cashmere appearance, or the beautiful tailored effect is produced in starching the goods. It launders as beautifully as fine white linen. Poplins of this kind may be purchased in various colors, though nothing quite takes the place of the white for shirt waists, and the madras effects with white figures are very dainty.

A New Dessert.

For the dessert make a plain, rich cream as usual, but flavor strongly with coffee. The day before the luncheon get from the butcher a little bunch of mint leaves, wash and wipe each one dry and boil a cup of sugar hard with half a cup of water. Cool slightly and then dip the leaves into the sirup and draw each one over granulated sugar on both sides; lay on oiled paper till dry. When the ginger ice cream is in the glasses put two candied mint leaves on top of each glass; the combination of flavors is very good.—Harper's Bazar.

The Perfect Bride.

A man, however feeble and insignificant, demands from his bride the form of the Venus of Medici, the charm of Mme. Recamier and the prudence of Hannah More. Naturally he does not get these divergent qualities united in one flesh and blood girl, and his disappointment sometimes makes him querulous and unreasonable.—Sketch.

Wastes of Human Life.

There are four wastes of human life preventable and largely unnecessary. These wastes are preventable death, preventable sickness, preventable conditions of low physical and mental efficiency and preventable ignorance. The last named, ignorance, is responsible in large part for the others.—Woman's Medical Journal.

For Mothers.

Don't forget that you are or ought to be your children's ideal of all that is perfection and that it is your duty to live up to their ideals in every possible way—not an easy task, but wonderfully inspiring.—Home Chat.

Highly salted and smoked herrings, haddock, mackerel or other fish are greatly improved if they are laid overnight to soak in a little sour milk. This effectually draws out the salt, besides considerably improving the flavor of the fish and making it less smoked and highly seasoned.

Glasses which have held milk should never be washed in warm water while the dregs of the milk cling around the edges. If the glass is first rinsed out in cold water, it can then be washed safely in warm water in the usual way.

It is only the great hearted who can be true friends; the mean and cowardly can never know what true friendship means.—Home Notes

VOGEL'S MINSTRELS

Show to a Large and Well Pleased Audience Wednesday Evening.

Wednesday evening the opera house was packed with a crowd of expectant and orderly people, when, at about 8 30 the curtin was rolled up, displaying a costly scene of dazzling splendor, while sweet strains of music floated to the ears of the spectators. From that time on, the theatre-goers of this town beheld sights that made them marvel or burst out in roars of laughter. The musical part of the entertainment was excellently rendered, and during the singing of several songs the scene was greatly beautified by having artificial lights thrown on it. The costumes were of the best and were very pretty.

In the comical line was Al. Tyrrell, backed by his several colored comedians, and Al. was certainly fine. He was encored time and again. Another very pleasing part of the entertainment was a series of acts performed with hoops and also some fine juggling. Uni-cyclist Hay had them all guessing when he got started with the cycles. He knows how to ride a bicycle alright and when he gets tired of one way he can soon find another. Taking the play altogether it was fine and the audience made many desireable comments on it.

Many would like to hear how Calvin Huss performed, as he is one of the boys from our own vicinity. Well Mr. Huss played his parts well, at no time seeming to mind the fact that he was playing before many of his friends. His acting was first class in every respect. Mr. Huss played in this company for the last time Wednesday night, however. He departed for Washington, D. C. this morning where he has accepted a much better position with the Dockstader Minstrel Co.

"Little Egypt" Left Fortune of $200,000.

New York, January 23rd.—Fred Hamlin, of the banking firm of Hamlin & Co., of East Bloomfield, N. Y., has applied for letters of administration for the estate of Catherine Devine, the "Little Egypt" of Seeley dinner fame, who died alone in her flat in West Thirty-seventh street, two weeks ago. Mr. Hamlin asserts that he married the dancer nearly 12 years ago.

The relatives of the dancer will fight Hamlin's claims. The estate is valued at $200,000.

She had been on the stage more than 20 years and her income after the Seeley dinner, it is said averaged nearly $1,000 a week.

ORCHARD FERTILIZATION.

Three Elements Required by the Soil For Best Results.

There is an idea more or less common among fruit growers that if they are growing and removing no crops from the space between the trees no plant food is being removed from their orchard soils. And they reason therefore that it is not necessary to apply any fertilizing elements to the orchards. It is true that the soils in the Bitter Root valley are rich in all the elements required in the growth of plants, but it is only a question of time when the yields will decrease, and then the farmers and orchardists will find that they have been drawing on the plant food in the soil until it is practically exhausted.

It is a common saying that old apple trees produce only small apples, while the younger trees produce large apples. The reason for this is usually attributed alone to the age of the trees and not to the fact that the trees have been for years drawing upon the plant food, while nothing has been added to the soil.

Professor C. G. Hopkins of the Illinois experiment station says in regard to the fertility of the soil: "The productive capacity of practically all soils in good physical condition is measured by the available supply of the three elements, nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium. These are the elements which are present in nearly all soils in comparatively small amounts and yet are absolutely required by all agricultural plants and in very considerable quantities."

Practically all grain farmers now realize that it is unprofitable to attempt to grow several successive crops on the same soil without adding fertilizers. In the west where the soils have not yet been totally deprived of all food elements barnyard manure, clover or peas and other legumes are usually sufficient to keep the soil in good productive condition, and these manures are now applied at the proper time by all progressive grain farmers.

Many fruit growers apparently reason that it is not necessary to fertilize soils upon which fruit trees are growing.

It is conceded by all progressive farmers that in order to maintain the soil fertility and get maximum crops of grain from a given field it is necessary to put back in the soil a part at least of the food elements removed by the crop. Since an apple crop removes more plant food per acre than the grain crops, it seems only reasonable that more plant food should be returned to the soil.

As to varieties in the Bitter Root valley, from ninety-three growers who have produced apples for market 45 per cent have made the most profit from McIntosh and Alexander. In concluding the foregoing, by R. W. Fisher of the Montana experiment station, it may be said that the McIntosh red apple is classed as one of the late fall or early winter varieties, and within the last few years it has attained great popularity in New England. The fruit is juicy and tender, the skin bright crimson on light yellow with a heavy bloom.

Root Crops For Stock.

Root crops are a valuable feed for stock, especially during the winter, when they supplement the rations of grain and other dry feed stuffs. They thrive best in regions having moist and cool weather, but nevertheless enough heat and sunshine to promote rapid growth during the growing season. In many sections of the northern states root crops may be grown with profit, but the fact that their culture is not so generally understood as it should be is probably the reason that they are not grown so extensively in the United States as in Canada and parts of Europe.

Warm Water For Cows.

A practical farmer says that his cows produce more milk when provided with warm water during cold weather, the principal cause in shrinkage of milk being that ice cold water interferes with the digestion of food, whereas warm water promotes it.

HANDY DEVICE.

A Simple Contrivance That Is Easily Made and Used.

A hog ringing device is here pictured in regard to which a writer in Farm Press says:

In making this crate I use 2 by 4 timber for all cross and upright pieces except the board at the back to fasten the hogs in, the stanchion and the crosspiece in front, which should be wider to hold the pins, and I find inch lumber sufficient for this piece. The floor also is inch stuff, and the upright stanchion is made of 2 by 6 stuff, with bolts at the bottom and two other bolts to use as pins at the top. The crate is four feet long, fourteen inches wide at the bottom and twenty-four inches wide at the top. I place it in the hogpen door, let the hogs in from the rear and let them out from the front after the rings are adjusted.

Hibernation of Boll Weevils.

It has been often noticed that in a wooded country boll weevils appear first in spring along the borders of fields next to the woods and gradually work inward from the edges, so that it seems probable that in a wooded country most of them hibernate in woodland. Around outbuildings and barns also are found favorable places, as there are always more or less rubbish and protection in such situations. In 1903 more than five times as many weevils were found in a piece of cotton near the Texas State college barn, where cotton had been grown the previous year, than were found in any other locality in that neighborhood. It is also noticeable that weevils are always more numerous near gins than at a distance from them. Unfortunately where much rubbish and grass are present and where the soil remains loose and is not packed by rains large numbers of the weevils winter in the cotton fields.

Breeding Dairy Cows.

In breeding dairy cows a man should have a definite object in view. Too many shift from beef to dairy when dairy products are high and beef products are low and then shift back again from dairy to beef when beef rises in value. By this method a man is constantly shifting from one breed to another, and as a result he is getting a herd that is good for neither milk nor beef. A man must have an ideal toward which he is breeding and then bend all his energies to that end. This shifting from one breed to another is a suicidal policy that will ruin any man and any herd.—Kansas Experiment Station.

To Clean Oil Paintings.

To clean an oil painting that is covered with dirt and flyspecks wipe all the dust from the painting with a soft cloth.

Put a little linseed oil in a saucer and, dipping the finger in the oil, rub the painting gently.

It will require time and patience, but the effect will repay you.

Artists say that in cleaning a painting nothing but the fingers, dipped in oil or water, should be used.

Copper Chafing Dishes Popular.

Copper is the preferred metal for chafing dishes just at present, and a lovely utensil of this kind is in mission mountings. The dark oak cut in a square block is used for a knob on the cover and is guaranteed not to become hot. The corners of the frame are also set into the wood.

TOILET HINTS.

Brushing the hair thoroughly is absolutely necessary. If it is not done all the tonics and shampoos will prove a dismal failure.

A bruised nail should be held for half an hour in water as hot as it can be borne. This will usually prevent the nail from discoloring.

Lemons are very useful in health and sickness. Hot lemonade is one of the best remedies for incipient cold. It is also excellent in cases of biliousness.

A simple remedy for oiliness of the nose is to add a little washing soda to the water in which the face is washed. The rich foods which cause pimples all afflict the nose, and the only permanent cure is a return to a normal diet.

Eating apples for luncheon or breakfast is one of the best habits a woman who uses her brain constantly can acquire. They are healthful, easily digested and in many persons overcome a tendency to fullness of blood in the head.

Perfect teeth and red gums are a very essential part of beauty. To keep both in condition scrupulous care will be needed. Very cold or hot as well as acid drinks should be avoided and the mouth rinsed after each meal. Salt is good to add to the washing water.

First Patent In America.

The first patent in America was granted to Joseph Jenks, a founder and machinist who had emigrated from Hammersmith, England, where he was born in 1602. He was a very ingenious man, and was induced by Governor Winthrop, the younger, to come to Lynn, Mass., about 1642, as master mechanic to establish "the iron and steel works."

He was acknowledged head of the iron smelting and founding business and the first builder of machinery in this country and first patentee of invention in America, having introduced the idea (first granted by act of parliament in 1625) of protection for the manufacture of improvements by petition to the government of Massachusetts Bay. In 1646 he took patents for mill improvements, and in 1655 he patented the present form of the grass scythe, for which he should be held in grateful remembrance. In 1652 he made dies for the first coinage of money, the pine tree shillings. In 1654 he built the first fire engine to the order of the selectmen of Boston (the first ever built in this country); in 1657 he built a forge and entered upon the manufacture of his improved scythes nine years before his application was granted.—Journal of American History.

Keeping Cake Pans From Sticking.

No matter how many devices there are in the way of patent cake pans, nothing gives more general satisfaction for layer cake than to line the pans with buttered paper.

It is a good idea to buy 10 cents' worth of the common yellow wrapping paper that is used in grocery stores, and some day when you have a little extra leisure cut these sheets to fit the different pans used. Thus some may be circular, others square or oblong and a few with a hole in the center for the Turk's head pans used for fruit or pound cakes.

Put these papers carefully away in the pantry closet, and they will prove worth their weight in eggs at present day prices when you come to bake your cakes on a crowded Saturday morning.

Do not grease the pan, only the top of the paper.

When the cake is done, then it should be turned upside down on a cloth and the paper pulled off as quickly as possible.

The Only Way.

THE FARM HORSE.

Errors In Care During the Season of Light Work.

With a great many farmers the winter season is one of comparative rest for the farm horse. Of course there are farmers who make it a point of keeping the team busy all winter, but even with these the work is not what it is in the other seasons. During the cold weather there is generally more or less teaming, such as hauling wood, ice, etc., but the work is not regular. Then in grain and hay growing sections there is considerable team work to be done in getting this produce to market, and there is other work for which a team is required, but with all this the horse is not called on to do anything like what he has to in spring and summer.

Winter Feeding.

But while the work for the average farm horse is not nearly as hard in winter as in other seasons, a time of comparative idleness is by no means the most agreeable to him or the best for his health. On the contrary, he is exposed to various ills from which he does not suffer during the season of hard but regular work. One of these ills is irregular and careless feeding. During the spring and summer, when the horse is working hard, he is regularly fed a certain amount of grain and a reasonable quantity of hay. In winter the grain ration is cut down and the hay is increased. Some farmers make the mistake of feeding a great quantity of coarse fodder through the winter to the detriment of the animal's health. Others stuff their horses with hay until they are entirely out of condition for any kind of use. Probably in nine cases out of ten the heaves are brought on by the injurious method of feeding horses in winter.

Watering the Work Horse.

Another mistake is the manner in which the work horse is supplied with water. Often the water is offered the horse when he wants to eat rather than drink, and because he refuses no more is given him until the next regular time for watering. By this time he has become very thirsty and drinks too much, says a writer in Country Gentleman. And in freezing cold weather how many warm or take the chill off the water before giving it to the horse?

POULTRY PENS.

Satisfactory Ventilation Secured by Duck Covered Openings.

In giving a description of a New York poultry house, which contains a number of pens, G. Arthur Bell writes of the system of ventilation in use as follows: Several of the partitions in the house are boarded up solidly from floor to ceiling to prevent the drafts which are so likely to be found in long houses.

In the front or south side of each pen are placed two windows, each window consisting of two twelve light sashes. The windows are arranged to slide up and down as in an ordinary dwelling, special care being exercised to have them move freely in order that they may be opened at any time regardless of weather conditions. Unless this point is considered the windows are very apt to become frozen in on the arrival of cold weather, and it becomes difficult to open them; hence the ventilation is frequently neglected. During the past winter one window in each pen was arranged as shown in the cut, the upper sash being dropped to the window sill and the opening thus made covered with a piece of eight ounce duck, the latter being tacked to the upper bar of the lower sash and to the sides and top of the window frame. In extreme cold weather the lower sash is slipped up to the top of the window, thus effectually closing it. This method proved to be very satisfactory, the house being unusually dry and the birds appearing to be in excellent health.

Cutting Back Trees.

In highly interesting experiments at the Woburn (England) experimental fruit farm in cutting back apple trees when planted the ultimate result was found to be that trees not cut back until the end of the first year continued to form wood in subsequent years, and the crop borne by them during the first ten years was only one-third of that borne by those which were cut back when planted.

Winter Hay.

There should be no difficulty anywhere in the south in getting a winter hay crop that would yield one ton per acre, to be followed by a summer crop of cowpeas that would yield from one to two tons per acre. Considering the price of hay in the south and the considerable income from a hay farm, the cost of the necessary equipment is not too large.—Harman Benton.

Cotton as a Surplus Crop.

High priced cotton does not help the all cotton farmer, for the price of everything else rises at the same time. The man who raises cotton as a surplus crop makes net money when cotton goes to good prices.—Texas Farm and Ranch.

WANTED—BY CHICAGO MANUFACTURING HOUSE,—person of trustworthiness and somewhat familiar with local territory as assistant in branch office. Salary $18 paid weekly. Permanent position. No investment required. Business established. Previous experience not Essential to engaging. Address, Manager ranches, 223 Dearborn St, Chicago.

If a cough once gets into your system it acts on every muscle and fibre of the body and makes you ache all over. It especially affects the intestines and makes you constipated, so in order to get rid of a cold thoroughly and without delay you should not take anything that will tend to constipate. Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup acts upon the bowels and thereby drives the cold out of the system. It contains no opiates—it is pleasant to take and is highly recommended for children. Sold by Green's Pharmacy.

THE WOMAN WHO COUGHED.

Catarrh had nearly ruined me. It had eaten away the partition in my nose; produced Asthma, Bronchitis, Rheumatism; ruined my stomach; in fact, gone all through my system. Then Grip finished me. I was a wreck; took cold at nothing; and coughed day and night. The doctors dosed me with opium and quinine. No good. Cough 'cures'? Bah! Then Brazilian Balm renovated me. Killed every germ. Took 10 $1.00 bottles. Now I'm like a girl of 18.

Basket Ball.

The Bellefonte Academy basket ball five returned from Williamsport last Saturday noon well satisfied with their excellent showing on the Williamsport Y. M. C. A. floor the night before and then revealed their real strength on Saturday evening by defeating the Juniata College "preps" on the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium by the score of 41-24. The visitors were a sturdy lot of players. In the preliminary practice they were so accurate in shooting goals that a very close game was anticipated, but as the game continued the Academy players proved too fast and clever for them. By the excellent team work and individual handling of the ball at times by Laderer, Myers and Heiner, the Academy succeeded in rolling up a score of 33-7 in the first half. Laderer the new player who hails from the basket ball region of Butler made eight field goals and one goal from a foul in this half. During the intermission it was decided to give the reserves a chance in the second half and so Galbraith was substituted for Aikens, D. Succot for Heiner and Lyon for Laderer and a closer contest was the result. The visitors proved themselves a very gentlemanly lot and received due applause from the interesting audience when their good plays were made. Mr. Barnes as usual refereed very satisfactorily.

The line up:

Juniata Preps		Academy
Houser (capt)	forward	Myers
Estel	"	Heiner, Succot
Morningstar	centre	Aikens, Galbth
Spyker	guard	Oberlin
Mossion	"	Laderer Lyon

Goals from field—Houser 2, Estel 2, Morningstar 6, Laderer 8, Myers 5, Heiner 4, Aikens 2, Galbraith 1; fouls—Morningstar 2, Laderer 1. Time of halves 20 minutes. Referee—Barnes.

Death of Mrs. John Strayer.

Mrs. Cordelia Strayer, wife of John Strayer, died Thursday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock at the home of her mother Mrs. William Hevner of Lock Haven after suffering a stroke of apoplexy. Deceased was 49 years of age, and is survived by her husband, mother, one sister, Mrs. A. R. Wendt, of Williamsport, and three brothers—Edward W., of Mt. Jewett; Archie, of Kane; and Jacob located somewhere in the west. The deceased was born at Queen's Run and when a small child, the family moved to Lock Haven where she lived until a number of years ago when they moved to this place but during the past two years again resided in Lock Haven.

The funeral services were held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the house, and interment was made in Highland cemetery.

SPELLING NAMES.

There Was No Doubt About "Hannah" When the English Lady Finished.

A bygone generation witnessed an acrimonious controversy in the Irish family of O'Conor in County Roscommon as to the right of any branch of the ancient race to spell the name thus—with one "n." That right, it was maintained, was held only by the O'Conor Don as head of the house. So prolonged was the contest between the partisans of the O'Conor and O'Connor titles that it was called the "N-less" (standing for "endless") correspondence. Finally the question was referred to Sir J. Bernard Burke, the Ulster king of arms. His decision coincided with a decision in a certain other matter—namely, that much might be said on either side. The two disputing families had a common origin, a king of Connaught, and could with propriety and in accordance with tradition spell the name one way or the other. Fortified by this "award," the two families have continued to spell their name with one "n" up to the present hour.

Equally firm on the question as to how his name should be spelled was the witness in a case tried in the king's bench a few years ago. Asked his name, his prompt reply was "John 'Awkins." "Do you," queried counsel, "spell your name with or without an H?" The emphatic answer was, "J-o-h-n." As a rule, however, as we have said, variety in the spelling of the names of people, as in that of the names of places, owes its origin to people not being so clear as was our friend regarding how a name should be spelled.

Two stories in illustration of this occur to us. In the first Mrs. Quiverful was having christened her latest baby. The old minister was a little deaf. "What name did you say?" he queried. "I said," replied the mother, with some asperity, "Hannah." "Do you," said the other, "mean Anna or Hannah?" "Look 'ere," exclaimed the now thoroughly exasperated lady, "I won't be hexamined in this way. I mean 'Haitch-hay-hen-hen-hay-haitch'—Hannah!"

The second incident to which we refer is this. Here also there was "a lady in the case." She was on an errand, and she had to deal with the name of another party. In brief, she had bought a pair of sleeve links for her fiance when the shopman asked, "Any initials, miss?" The rest may be stated thus:

She—Oh, yes; I forgot. Engrave a "U" upon them for his first name.

Shopman—Pardon me, is it Uriah or Ulysses? Names with "U" are rare, you know.

She (proudly)—His name is Eugene.—London Globe.

"MOLL PITCHER."

History of the Famous Heroine of the Revolution.

"Moll Pitcher" was the daughter of a Pennsylvania German family living in the vicinity of Carlisle. She was born in 1748, and her name was Mary Ludwig, a pure German name. She was married to one John Casper Hayes, a barber, who when the war broke out with the mother country enlisted in the First Pennsylvania artillery and was afterward transferred to the Seventh Pennsylvania infantry, commanded by Colonel William Irvine of Carlisle, with whose family Mary Ludwig had lived at service. She was permitted to accompany her husband's regiment, serving the battery as cook and laundress, and when at the battle of Monmouth (Freehold), N. J., her husband was wounded at his gun she sprang forward, seized the rammer and took his place to the end of the battle. After the battle she carried water to the wounded, and hence her pet name of "Moll Pitcher."

Hayes died after the war was over, and she married a second husband of the name of McCauley, and at her grave in the old cemetery at Carlisle there is a monument that bears this inscription:

Molly McCauley,
Renowned in History as "Molly Pitcher," the Heroine of Monmouth;
Died January, 1833.
Erected by the Citizens of Cumberland County, July 4, 1876.

On Washington's birthday, 1822, when Molly was nearly seventy years old, the legislature of Pennsylvania voted her a gift of $40 and a pension of $40 per year.

An Auditive Illusion.

"What town is that a few miles to the north?" shouted the aeronaut, leaning over the edge of the basket.

"Oshkosh!" yelled the agriculturist over whose farm the balloon was passing.

"What?"

"Oshkosh!"

"What did he say?" asked the aeronaut's companion.

"He didn't say anything. He swore at me."—Chicago Tribune.

Tolerance.

George Eliot was once asked what was the chief lesson she had learned in life's experience, and her prompt answer was, "Tolerance." It might have been expected from a woman who once said that she regarded life as a game of cards in which she watched each move with the deepest interest and turned as far as possible to her own advantage.

Common Factors.

Schoolmaster—Now, can any of you tell me whether there is a connecting link between the animal and vegetable kingdoms? Small Boy—Yes, sir, please; there's hash!—London Opinion.

KEEPING SHEEP.

The Farmer's Flock Can Be Maintained With Small Expense.

In an address before Ontario farmers in regard to success with sheep on the farm, Professor Day said in part:

I do not think it would be wise for every man to keep sheep, for the reason that in order to be successful with any class of animals a man must have love for them, and if a man does not like sheep he would not be likely to make a success of them. There are several things about the sheep, however, which make them especially well adapted to occupy a place on almost any farm.

Sheep will eat a great many kinds of weeds which other animals will not touch. This makes them especially valuable about a farm as a sort of scavenger.

They will live on very poor pasture, where many other animals would starve. Their activity enables them to travel long distances in search of their food, and the formation of their mouths is such that they can bite very closely to the ground, enabling them to gather a living from the poorest soils.

Cheap Shelter.

Sheep require very inexpensive buildings. Almost any sort of building will answer the purpose so long as it protects them from storms in the roughest weather and is reasonably dry and free from drafts. There is no other farm animal for which cheaper buildings are required.

There is comparatively little labor involved in taking care of a flock of sheep. I do not know of any animal that requires less labor in its feeding and management.

Grind Their Own Grain.

They grind their own grain, which is another factor which adds to the cheapness of their maintenance. They are the best grain grinders which we have, and the weed seeds consumed by sheep are never known to grow afterward. This is not true of other farm animals.

FINE POTATOES.

An Improved Product Containing Many Strong Points.

Farmers who have grown the Green Mountain potato will be interested in the picture reproduced herewith. These potatoes were grown by a practical farmer of Licking county, O. The product shown in this basket is the result of many years' careful selection.

They represent a highly improved strain of Green Mountain potatoes, containing all the strong qualities of the original, with all the weaker points bred out. The following from American Agriculturist gives further details of this splendid potato:

One of the potatoes exhibited at the Ohio state fair last fall which attracted our attention was an improved strain of Green Mountain. Speaking of this variety, the producer says: Several years ago we procured a small amount of seed from a well known farm of the original Green Mountain potato. I noted the very desirable and strong features this potato possessed. On the other hand, among the undesirable qualities was lack of uniformity and smoothness in the tubers. The eyes were too deep and the yield usually not in keeping with the vigor and spread of the vine.

By careful selection of certain hills and tubers showing the least fault in these respects I eventually secured a potato that practically eliminated all the faults. By growing these several years under most favorable cultural conditions on a light loam soil abundantly supplied with humus and chemicals I finally secured what I consider a strain of Green Mountain that is far superior to the original. I planted only perfect specimens and as a result have secured a potato possessing all the strong points of the original and lacking the undesirable ones.

The potato is cream white, with a slightly netted skin, rather oblong and somewhat flattened as well as uniform in size. It sets moderately well, and a large per cent of the tubers of the potatoes develop to marketable size. Only 4 per cent of the total yield has been considered culls on my farm during the past six years. Tubers are rarely if ever hollow and are superb for table use. It is a yielder of exceptional merit, and it is popular wherever it has been grown.

Plants Resistant to Disease.

It has long been known that plants vary widely in their power of resistance to disease. Not only do certain kinds of plants seem to be almost immune to diseases of every kind, but some varieties of the same plant are but little affected by disease, while others are badly injured by disease. Variations in this respect also extend to individual plants.

Silage in Florida.

Silage is used in Florida to a limited extent, but in a number of the different sections, on the coast of Florida especially, the silage is of good quality. Probably the greatest reduction in profits is usually caused by the use of inferior cattle, which are found in a large majority of the dairies throughout the entire south.

GOLD COINS.

Why Bankers Don't Like Them and Prefer to Handle Paper.

"Of the different kinds of American money now in circulation the gold coins of all denominations are the most disliked in my business," said a prominent New York banker.

"Take a greenback, a silver or a gold certificate or a national bank note to your bank and it is received and placed to your credit without a moment's delay. Not so with gold. A few days ago a gentleman brought to our bank upward of $3,000 in gold of different denominations and was much provoked because we would not receive it and give him credit with the amount the face of the coin represented. This we could not do because the law requires that gold shall be redeemed only at its actual value. Coins carried in the pocket for any length of time naturally lose something by abrasion—probably but a fractional part of a cent on a ten dollar piece, but it is a loss nevertheless—and therefore bankers cannot give credit for gold deposits until the coin shall have been weighed. In the case mentioned my friend took his gold to the subtreasury and was compelled to wait there nearly an hour before he could get notes for it.

"Every coin had to be passed through the scales, and after the weighing process had been completed three of the coins—two five dollar pieces and a ten dollar piece—were returned to him as short in weight. Before returning short weight coins the department stamps on the face of each coin a cross. The owner is either left to send the coins to the United States mint for redemption or again put them into circulation. Eventually the coins with crosses on their faces will go to the mint and be redeemed at their actual value. In many instances there may not be more than several cents' shortage on $50 worth of coins. Business men, however, naturally object to the inconvenience and get rid of their gold as fast as possible."—New York Press.

STRANGE DISHES.

Lion's Flesh, Tiger's Meat and Baked Elephant's Foot.

Lion's flesh is said to furnish a very good meal. Tiger meat is not so palatable, for it is tough and sinewy. In India nevertheless it is esteemed, because there is a superstition that it imparts to the eater some of the strength and cunning that characterizes the animal. This notion is not, of course, held by the followers of Brahma and Buddha, whose religion forbids the eating of flesh.

There appears to be considerable difference of opinion among authorities on the subject as to the merits of elephant's flesh as an article of diet. By some it is considered a dainty, but there is the authority of at least one European against it. Stanley said that he frequently tasted elephant's flesh and that it was more like soft leather and glue than anything else with which he could compare it. Another explorer, however, declares that he cannot imagine how an animal so coarse and heavy as the elephant could produce such delicate and tender flesh. All authorities agree in commending the elephant's foot. Even Stanley admitted that baked elephant's foot was a dish fit for a king. It is the greatest delicacy that can be given to a Kaffir. —St. Louis Republic.

Shakespeare and His Plays.

The Shakespeare-Bacon controversy is right where it began many years ago. The man from Stratford is still in possession, though there are many learned men who seriously question his rights. It has not been proved that Bacon wrote the plays or that Shakespeare did not write them. One thing the controversy has done, however—it has immeasurably heightened the mystery of the fact, if it is a fact, that the plays were written by the historical Shakespeare. Between the Shakespeare we know in history and the man who wrote "Lear," "Hamlet" and "Macbeth" there would seem to be an unbridged distance.—New York American.

The Way of New York.

In New York you buy your theater tickets from a speculator for two prices, and after the show you bribe a waiter to bring you food for which you pay the jolly innkeeper two and one-half prices, after which you may be hauled home by a rheumatic horse if you pay the driver once for hauling you home and once for not getting down from his perch and booting you out of the hansom.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Helping the Musician.

At a political meeting an Irishman watched closely the trombone player in the band. Presently the man laid down his instrument and went out for a beer. Paddy investigated and promptly pulled the horn to pieces.

The player returned. "Who's meddled mit my drombone?" he roared.

"Oi did," said Paddy. "Here ye've been for two hours tryin' to pull it apart, an' Oi did it in wan minut!"—Argonaut.

Sappho.

Sappho was born in Lesbos about the end of the seventh century B. C. In antiquity the fame of Sappho rivaled that of Homer. She was called "the poetess;" he was called "the poet." She was styled "the tenth muse," "the flower of the graces," "a miracle," "the beautiful." But few fragments of her works are preserved, and these only incidentally by other writers.

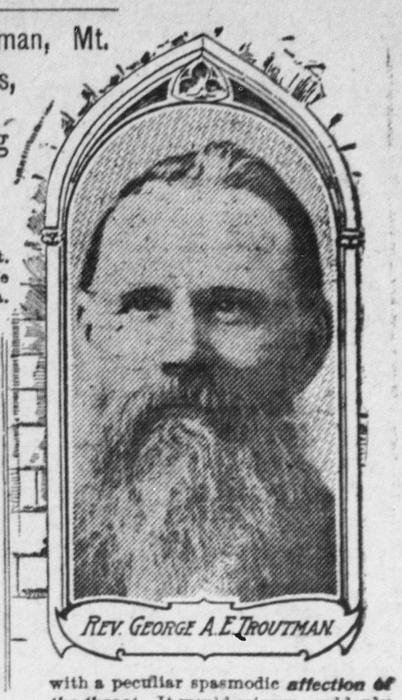
REV. TROUTMAN SENDS BEST WISHES FOR PE-RU-NA

Rev. George A. E. Troutman, Mt. Washington, Mo., Writes,

"My Wife and I Are Strong Believers in Pe-ru-na."

Catarrh and La Grippe.

Rev. Geo. A. E. Troutman, Mt. Washington, Mo., writes: "My wife and I are strong believers in Peruna.



REV. GEORGE A. E. TROUTMAN.

I was cured of a bad case of catarrh when nothing else that I tried had any effect. My wife was cured from a severe case of la grippe, and we feel that the least we can do is to gratefully acknowledge the merit of Peruna.

"My wife joins me in sending best wishes for your success."

Throat Trouble.

Rev. H. W. Tate, 920 Lincoln Avenue, Walnut Hills, Cincinnati, Ohio, writes: "For several years I have been troubled with a peculiar spasmodic affection of the throat. It would seize me suddenly and for a few minutes I would be unable to speak audibly, and my breath would be greatly interfered with. I would be obliged to gasp for breath.

"I finally concluded that it was some catarrhal affection which probably excited the spasm. It interfered with my vocation as a preacher, attacking me occasionally in the pulpit.

"I had heard so much about Peruna as a catarrh remedy that I determined to try it. After taking two bottles, my trouble has disappeared. I feel sure that Peruna has greatly benefited me."

Rev. P. E. Swanstrom, Swedish Baptist Pastor, Box 228, Grantsburg, Wis., writes that from the use of Peruna he is perfectly well, entirely cured of chronic diarrhea and catarrh.

Peruna in Tablet Form.

For two years Dr. Hartman and his assistants have incessantly labored to create Peruna in tablet form, and their strenuous labors have just been crowned with success. People who object to liquid medicines can now secure Peruna Tablets, which represent the medicinal ingredients of Peruna. Each tablet is equivalent to one average dose of Peruna.

Bellefonte High School Reception.

On Friday evening the Junior Class gave one of the finest receptions ever held in the high school building, in honor of the Senior class. The reception started at 8 45, the members of the Senior class being received in the best style which the Juniors were enabled to do. Until the hour of 10 the classes enjoyed themselves with singing and games, and than they all sat down to a feast prepared in splendid style. While enjoying this delightful repast, Prof. John D. Meyer was prevailed upon to call on some of the students to speak and sing. The first called on was professor Jonas E. Wagner, who talked on the class spirit between the Seniors and Juniors. During the past three years the classes have always been rivaling for colors, but the present classes seem to be as one. The next person called was Prof. C. H. Dickerman who talked about the different ways that classes come in contact with each other. He stated that they generally met on the Atheletic field and that in this manner many enemies were made. The third person called was Ivan Walker, the president of the Senior class. Ivan excused himself by saying that it was a hard matter for a person to talk after eating a hearty meal. Next was Daniel Wallace president of the Junior class. He excused himself in the same manner as Ivan Walker. He also said he was sick. No wonder he was sick, it made the things on the table sick to see him "going for them."

The decorations were fine, consisting of the school, Junior and Senior class colors, and so arranged as to present a very pleasing appearance to the eye.

The members of these classes certainly enjoyed the evening. As to that feast which they had, just ask Frank Crissman about it. He thought that 6 sandwiches was just a starter. Talk about cake! William Straub can tell you the way that every piece of cake that came his way went.

The members of the Senior class who enjoyed the feast are as follows: Abbie Cooke, Grace Crawford, Mary McMurtrie, Bessie Miles, Katherine Willard, Rachel Shuey, Frank Crissman, Harold Gardner, Nevin Hoy, Wilbur Kramer, Ogden Malin, Walter Rishel, Edward Shields, William Straub, Arthur Ward, Ivan Walker, and Norman Kirk.

Diet for Invalids.

The White House Cook Book, practically free, with one's year's subscription of the Daily Philadelphia Press, contains a department on diet for invalids which comprises a book in itself. The book and the Press have a national reputation. The value of the Daily Press, one year, and the Cook Book is $5.00; the cut rate offer for both is Three Dollars and Fifty Cents, but do not wait to place your order, the offer may be withdrawn at any time.

Basket Ball.

On Friday evening a fair sized crowd gathered at the Y. M. C. A. gym to witness a really good game of basket ball. The opposing teams were the Tyrone five and our local champions. Tyrone had been expecting a lively contest in which they should put our boys to defeat. What happened? They got the lively contest alright but our boys took the laurels of victory by the score of 21—17. The game was very well played and it was a pleasure to watch the boys as they tussled and hustled across the floor. The game was one of the best witnessed in this town this season and was as much if not more than had been looked for. Our boys have a right to receive our congratulations as they not only put up a nice game, but acted like men during the entire contest.

GROOMING COUNTS

But it cannot make a Fair Skin or a Glossy Coat.

Women with good complexions cannot be homely. Creams, lotions, washes and powders cannot make a fair skin. Every horseman knows that the satin coat of his thoroughbred comes from the animal's "all-right" condition.

Let the horse get "off his feed" and his coat turns dull. Currying, brushing and rubbing will give him a clean coat, but cannot produce the coveted smoothness and gloss of the horse's skin, which is his complexion. The ladies will see the point.

Lane's Family Medicine

Is the best preparation for ladies who desire a gentle laxative medicine that will give the body perfect cleanliness internally and the wholesomeness that produces such skins as painters love to copy.

CORRESPONDENCE

All correspondents must be in this office not later than Tuesday evening. And local matter must be written only on one side of the paper. Correspondents will kindly notice these requests.

Port Matilda

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Woodring, of this place gave a dinner on Jan 26th in honor of their son Charles, who had reached his twenty-first birthday. Charley as we usually call him is connected with the First National Bank, of State College. He is a graduate of the Port Matilda High School and the Valparaiso University and we feel sure he will make his mark. The young people present were entertained by Mr. Dayton, of Tyrone, and Miss Miles, who rendered some very fine selections on the piano. Miss Miles and Charley also sang some beautiful duets that were enjoyed by everyone. This all occurred before dinner for after the guests had ate the sumptuous dinner prepared by Mrs. Woodring, they were to well filled up to sing or play—except the writer who always eats sparingly. Of course they were soon singing and playing again. Among the guests presen; were Miss Beulah Fortney, of Boalsburg-Miss Etta Woodring, of Tyrone, Miss Zenovia Miles, Mabel Williams, and Kathryn Reese, of Port Matilda; Mr. Marion Myers, of State College; Mr. Eugene Dayton and Willey Chaney, of Tyrone; and Prof. J. A. Williams, of Port Matilda. Mr. Meyer sang two songs that were very embracing "Sweet Beulah Land," and "Hold the Fort, for I am Coming." I came very near forgetting to mention this but I know Mr. Meyers would feel slighted had I not done so.

We have had plenty of snow this winter if it had of stayed with us. There was 18 inches at one time, but only lasted a short time until it all left with a big rain. This week we have a little sleighing again.

The M E church people are having quite a big meeting going on since Christmas. Having a great many seekers.

This is the busiest place of its size. Where ever you look teams are hauling heavy loads of some kind Every person is busy doing something.

Snow Shoe.

Milesburg

Miss Emma Kinne is visiting friends in Philipsburg and Holidaysburg.

The teachers local institute held in the Presbyterian church was well attended.

The birthday surprise party given in honor of Henry J. Kohlbecker, it being his 29th birthday, his sisters proved too much for him, they out generaled him on every point, flanked him on all sides and finally surrounded him, taking him as a prisoner of war. He surrendered like a little man, because he fell in the trap his sisters had laid for him and could not better his condition. After taking the oath of allegiance thay set him at Liberty then gave him and a few of his friends a square meal. The orchestra gave some excellent music to help the good cause along.

An other surprise was given to Henry McMullin and wife on the 18th at their residence at McCoy & Linn Iron Works. A number of relatives from a distance rushed in to them unexpected, Geo. McMullin, wife and son; Mrs. Bronsel, of Tyrone; Mrs. Jennie Kiser, of Altoona; and Robert McMullin and son, of Bellefonte, entered their home taking it by storm. After spending the day socially and pleasantly they departed for their homes.

The Central Supply Company of Milesburg on Friday the 24 h purchased the E. D Johnson and Co. store on the corner of Water and Mill streets. The grand opening having been on Monday morning. The new company has repainted a portion of the room and in a few days will be ready to supply their trade with a different line of merchandise.

Buried Two in One Grave.

John Dolph, a former resident of Philipsburg, who died of pneumonia last Friday was soon followed by his wife who died of the same disease on the day following, Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, and on Tuesday afternoon both bodies were buried in one grave at Kerrmoor where they had resided for the last 20 years.

The deceased was a native of Centre county, and had she lived until February 25th would have completed her 56th year. Besides her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Yingling, she leaves one adopted son and the following brothers and sisters, John, of Williamsport; William and Miles, of Philipsburg; Jacob, of Hawk Run; Mrs. Jacky Davis, of Philipsburg; and Mrs. David Davis, of Kerrmoor.

Need For Dust Sheets.

Every housekeeper should be amply provided with dust sheets, which can be thrown over upholstered chairs, sofas and other items of furniture when the rooms undergo their periodical "turnout."

Old worn bed linen is often used for this purpose, but when it is very thin and torn it ceases to be a protection, and the dust filters through and spoils covers and paint.

Calico and print are much the best materials to use, and the initial expense involved in investing in stocks of these dust covers is amply repaid over and over again.

Two widths of the material sewed together and hemmed are sufficient for ordinary use, two yards square being of ample size for an armchair.

When the covers are washed they should be well starched and ironed, the glazed surface being most effectual in keeping out dust.

Ancestry Book.

No longer is the girl with the matrimonial linen closet content that it should be full to overflowing with linen, fancy work and gifts of old family heirlooms until the time when the "prince to come" carries her to the dream house beautiful, where each treasure will have its proper setting.

But down deep in that chest—not so deep, however, but what it can be drawn forth to receive an additional note of interest—she must have an ancestry book.

These books come with blank pages and have fascinating little holes in which to stick grandmothers' and great-grandmothers' names and dates of birth, marriage and death.

By putting one's finger in—like little Jack Horner's pie—you can pull out any plum of any ancestors called for and their lineage as well.

On the original page are places to write down the line of paternal forbears in dignified procession, while on the opposite page is room to tell all the good things they did in this life—never the bad.

There is also a place for coats of arms and photographs.

And the girl who at first laughs and blushes at the idea of it all will soon find it most interesting and will take pride in setting down all she knows and hears of family facts and traditions.

A woman who has five dear little sons has filled one of these books half full for each of them, leaving the second half blank and ready for the future mother of her grandchildren.

Will not the boys, unconsciously perhaps, choose one whose records will compare favorably with their own?

Is there not engendered by these means a certain feeling of "noblesse oblige" that can hurt no true American of today?

Woman's World

PRINCESS VICTORIA MARGARET

A Young Prussian Princess Who Is a Clever Artist.

Like so many other members of European families, the young Princess Victoria Margaret of Prussia, who in April celebrated her seventeenth birthday, is a really accomplished artist. She paints miniatures on ivory, and her work has been very highly praised by some of the greatest portrait painters in Germany.

Recently, in aid of a Berlin charity bazaar, this gifted young princess exhibited a number of her miniatures, including portraits of her parents, her three brothers, the kaiser, the kaiserin and of her aunt, the Duchess of Connaught, who before her marriage was, of course, Princess Margaret of Prussia.

Germany's ruler is something of an artist, too, and last Christmas he gave another example of his amazing versatility by painting six little scenes. These paintings have been reproduced on postal cards by tens of thousands and sold for charitable purposes. Now the widowed queen of Saxony and the Princess Mathilde are getting out a series of pictorial cards for the benefit of homes for consumptives, and all the illustrations of the series will be drawn by royal persons.

The Art of Talking Well.

If you quote a brilliant or clever remark of another person, always tell who said it. Do not wear stolen jewels of conversation. They will but make your own paste look duller.

Avoid saying the obvious thing which has been said by hundreds before you. "I cannot remember names, but I never forget a face"—how many times do people make that remark as if it had never been said before, as if they were unique in that respect, whereas the remark was probably made by Adam.

"I don't mind the cold, but it's the dampness;" "It never rains but it pours;" "Every dog should have his day;" "Which do you like better, Longfellow or Whittier?" "I think man and woman are each dependent on the other;" "If rich people are extravagant, it puts the money into circulation," is the style of conversation that will cause people to flee your presence as they would the stagnant pool.

Never turn your readiness of thought and speech to a hurtful use.

Do not put a drop of poison in the cup of cold water you hand to the world. If you do, you will have to drink it yourself some day.

It is almost impossible in these days of universal torture from the labor problem to observe the old rule of not talking about your servants, but if you find yourself drifting in that direction lift yourself out of it.

Throw it aside with some humorous point of view regarding it, and all men will call you blessed.

Avoid all references to your own peculiarities of taste, manner or thought.

If you have any marked idiosyncrasies, all your friends know it, and neither your own defense nor condemnation of your peculiarities will change the opinions of other people regarding them.

Neither will your own opinion of them make them either more or less pleasing than they naturally are. If you are in a thoroughly healthy mental state, you will not be conscious of having any peculiarities, nor, indeed, will you have any.

When you are in conversation with one person, do not let your thoughts or gaze wander to some more interesting person or group.

There is far too much of that form of rudeness. It is the habit that marks the social climber, a fear lest he or she may not be getting the best of everything.

Schooner and Crew Probably Lost.

Mobile, Ala., Nov. —It is believed here that the schooner Asa T. Stowell, lumber laden, from Pensacola for Havana, was lost with all on board in the September hurricane. The owners of the boat in Providence, R. I., have given up hope. She carried a crew of a captain and six men.

ANNUAL STATEMENT.

Following the custom of Centre County papers the Bellefonte Republican have had their mailing list reset and the date to which your subsciption is paid will be found opposite your name on the label. We belfeve this will be a great convenience to our subscribers enabling them to see at a glance just when they are paid to. Quite a number of our readers are in arrears and we know this would not be the case had they received statements of their accounts.

The expenses of running a newspaper have increased greatly during the last year. White paper alone costs 50 per cent more than it did one year ago. Other expenses have increased accordingly. At this time of year all business houses make an effort to collect bills so as to meet their obligations promptly and start the new year square. We hope during the month of January to send a statement to every subscriber in arrears, but you don't need to wait for this. Send in your money and make your label read '08 or '09.

Remember the subscription price is $1.50 per year but if paid in advance it is $1.00

Big Fire in Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 24.—Five firemen were killed and twenty seriously injured by falling walls in the greatest fire that has occurred here since the destructive conflagration of 1904. The fire broke out shortly after midnight in the upper part of the building occupied by the firm of J. Regester and Sons, southeast corner of Holliday and Saratoga streets.

The whole fire department was called into service, after the first alarm was sent out. The fire spread rapidly, owing to high wind from the northwest. In a very short time the northern wall of the building fell, five firemen being killed and many injured by the falling walls in Saratoga street, which is a narrow street. The flames communicated to a number of old structures and a four-story building in the rear of Regester & Son soon caught fire.

Among the injured are George Horton, chief of the fire department. His skull was crushed and he received internal injuries; but little hope of his recovery.

The loss is placed at more than a half million dollars.

National Pride in Our Navy.

"The naval establishment the government and people of the United States now present is not a fresh inspiration of a sudden achievement. Reverting to the time in the first administration of President Cleveland, when William C. Whitney, then secretary of the navy, took many American citizens, including some of the most distinguished men of the country, to Philadelphia to witness the launching of two naval vessels—good for their time, but modest in comparison with the mammoth construction that has come since—the sturdy beginning of the new navy is recalled. That was some twenty years ago. Then is when we commenced the work of displacing the debilitated wooden ships of other days and the obsolete monitors that crowded the water space of League Island Navy Yard. Looking over the whole matter through two decades, the rational conclusion in that our country took up a great work with moderation, patience and wisdom, and every American citizen is entitled to take pride in what has been done. He need not be boastful. He may just exhibit a moral satisfaction in what has been done. We are now able to send a battle fleet to the Pacific ocean that attracts the attention of the world, and has aroused volumes of pestiferous criticism in our own country."

Charter Notice.

When You Take Cold

One way is to pay no attention to it; at least not until it develops into pneumonia, or bronchitis, or pleurisy. Another way is to ask your doctor about Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. If he says, "The best thing for colds," then take it. Do as he says, anyway.

How to Make Your Town Lively.

Although we are no authority on the chosen subject we wish to drop a few thoughts which may bring forth good results. In the first place the town must have good streets and pavements, and all things detrimental to the appearance of the town should be removed. Then another important thought is for everybody to work together. We cannot all be leaders, but we may all help to make the town lively by following the leaders. The leaders of the town are generally wide-awake business men, and such men, with the assistance of the other citizens can suggest methods which when followed out cannot help but make your town grow into a lively city. Will you be one of the citizens to make this town lively?

Crop of Experts Flourish in Field Prepared by Mother

MRS. THAW TESTIFIES.

Spectators Beheld a Pitiful Sight as the Mother Attempted to Shield Her Son From Punishment.

TELLS OF HARRY'S YOUTHFUL DAYS.

New York, Jan. 24th.—Dr. Charles L. Bailey was the first witness called. He said he attended Thaw when the latter was taken ill on a New York Central train. On cross examination Jerome made Bailey admit that his opinions were formed by a cursory examination. Dr. Charles C. Wagner was the next witness and he testified to Thaw's irrational acts.

Dr. Wagner said that Thaw told him he had been to Jerome and tried to get him to break up the alleged evil practices of Stanford White, but Thaw told Wagner that Jerome thought Thaw insanely jealous of White's attentions to Evelyn and paid no attention to him.

Mrs. William Thaw, mother of the prisoner, was probably subjected to the last inquisition which she must undergo in the effort to save her son's life. She was pitifully weak, but no one could doubt the clear, calm courage in her eyes or the honesty of her testimony. She said that at the age of three months Harry had pneumonia, which apparently affected his brain.

"He had spasm after spasm," she said, "and showed the most remarkable sleeplessness I ever saw in a child. He would literally wear out his nurse and me. He was nervous and wide awake. Even when he fell into a sleep the slightest noise would awaken him. He did not sleep one-third as much as the average child."

In the fallow field of this testimony one can readily see how luxuriantly the crops of experts will flourish. They will be called upon to tell all about the effect of heredity, whether the nervousness of the mother would affect the child and whether the things that Mrs. Thaw endured before his birth would have any bearing on his character and disposition.

Rapid Shoemaking.

A story of lightning like rapidity in shoemaking is told by a London paper. It appeared that while the German emperor was in England a London shoe firm received an order for a pair of shoes for the imperial feet. A messenger was dispatched early in the morning with several pairs of the highest priced footgear, none of which suited Wilhelm. An offer to make a pair of shoes was accepted by the kaiser's adjutant, and on a telephone message to the factory in London two men were put to work. At 1.30 o'clock in the afternoon the royal boots were completed and shipped to the German monarch. The shoes, which, report says, fitted perfectly, were worn by his majesty the same evening. The time consumed in making them was two hours and thirty minutes.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

A PEANUT SPREE.

Suggestions For a Merry Evening With the Toothsome Nuts.

From six to ten is the best number to play this game. A leader is chosen who arranges the order of events and takes down the records with pencil and paper. Prizes may be given to the winner in each stunt or to the one who at the end of the game has the greatest number of successes to his credit.

Two or three quarts of peanuts are spread on a table in the middle of the room.

A dish of any kind is filled with the nuts, and each player guesses how many it contains.

See who can hold the greatest number in one hand without the assistance of the other in placing them there.

A peanut is suspended by a thread about a yard long, and on the floor is placed a vase with mouth just large enough to receive the nut. Each player in turn holds the string so that the peanut dangles a foot or more above the vase and tries to drop it in.

Each person is given five peanuts, and at a signal all begin to shell them. He who finishes first is the winner. The inner skins must be removed and no nut broken. If one gets broken, another may be taken in its place.

Five nuts are placed on a chair at one end of the room. Each player in turn must take them, one by one, and put them on a chair at the opposite end of the room, returning them in like manner. The one doing it most quickly is the winner.

A large pin is stuck upright in the floor, and each player in turn pitches five peanuts at it, one by one. He who makes a nut remain nearest the pin wins.

Each shells five peanuts, and the one who catches the greatest number of these in his mouth after tossing them in the air wins.

A player is chosen by lot to stand at one end of the room with mouth wide open, while each of the others tries to toss three peanuts into it, one at a time.

Conundrums.

If a father gave 19 cents to one of his sons and 6 cents to the other, what time would it be? A quarter to 2.

If a postmaster went to a menagerie and was eaten by one of the wild beasts, what time would it be? Eight p. m.

If a guest at a restaurant ate a lobster and a second guest did the same, what would be the second guest's telephone number? 8-1-2.

How can you spell barge with thirteen letters? Bee, aye, are, gee, e—barge.

And what do you think she found there?
Her dog and her cat
Had been there before that
And left all the cupboard shelves bare.

What She Feared.

"I am not a bit afraid of the dark," said little Ethel to her mother one night. "Of course you're not. What should you be afraid of?" queried her mother. "Well, once I was afraid when I went into the pantry for a tart." "Why, what were you afraid of then, Ethel?" "I was afraid the tart might not be there," answered Ethel.

The Weight of the Spider's Web.

Here is something you never heard before and will doubtless find hard to believe when you do hear it, although it is true. The spider's web is so light that if you were to take a pound of it and unravel it it would be long enough to reach all the way round the world, with a sufficient quantity left to reach from New York to San Francisco.

Did His Best.

"My goodness!" exclaimed an anxious mother. "What in the world made your face so dirty, Willie?"

"Johnny Jones an' me had a fight," explained Willie, "an' he throw'd more dirt in my face than I could swaller."—Mother's Magazine.

THE SUGAR BEET.

Breeding of Pedigree Strains of Seed Now a Success.

Sugar beet plants examined by the North Dakota station at maturity, or 133 days after planting the seed, presented a deep root extending almost perpendicularly downward into the ground, the lower part being quite small and threadlike and reaching to a depth of more than three feet, and the lateral roots starting four or five inches from the surface, with but little root development in the upper six inches of the soil. The greatest amount of branching and fibrous growth of beet roots took place in the space between eight and fourteen inches in depth. The effect of subsoiling on the root growth and development of sugar beets as studied by this station resulted in a considerably better development of feeding roots and a more symmetrical development of the main root on the subsoiled plats. The Kansas station also found that the root system of the sugar beet lies comparatively deep and that the crop therefore admits of deep cultivation.

As to improvement of the sugar beet, C. E. Saylor states the following:

From a plant yielding from 6 to 7 per cent of its weight in sugar the sugar beet has been improved so that it will yield from 15 to 20 per cent, some individual beets going as high as 25 per cent. There is a marked tendency throughout the beet growing districts of the United States year by year to increase the general average of sugar content.

Of the work of the bureau of plant industry B. T. Galloway, chief, says:

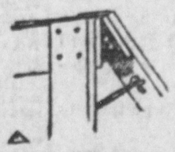
Except in a general way in no part of the sugar beet area is it definitely known what cultural methods will give the best results under different conditions of soil and climate. During the season of 1906 experiments were commenced along this line, but it will be necessary to continue this work for several seasons before definite conclusions can be reached.

The breeding of pedigree strains of seed from individually analyzed and recorded roots has been put on a firm basis in each of the five localities—New York, Utah, Washington and two points in Michigan.

Twenty acres of seed beets, all of which analyzed 22 per cent or more of sugar, were grown on the farm of E. H. Morrison at Fairfield, Wash. The seed secured from these beets amounted to about 15,000 pounds.

A Folding Support.

On the farm there is continual use for such a "horse" as is shown in the cut. Not only when doing little jobs of carpentering, but also in many other operations, such a support is found necessary. This little horse is an improvement over the ordinary stiff affair in that it shuts together when not in use and so can be packed out of the way, says a writer in New England Homestead.



SUPPORT BRACED.

It is made of boards cut in strips, the two horizontal boards at the top being hinged together.

While in use the legs are kept apart by a long hook, as indicated.

Farm Fences.

Every foot of land must be so fenced that at the proper time the horses, cattle, sheep and pigs can be turned in. Millions of dollars' worth of fine nutritious fodder goes to waste in the unfenced fields of our farms every year which if it could be used would produce many a bright dollar to jingle in the farmer's pocket or make long figures in his bank account, says Farm and Fireside.

At certain times of the year all the stock should have the entire range of the farm and give the old pasture a rest. It is wonderful what can be done in the way of fertilization by turning a flock of sheep or a herd of cattle into a field of stubble or of standing corn fodder. The men who have tried it speak well of the results.

Cheapest Protein Feeds.

The cheapest protein feeds in 1906 at the New Jersey experiment station were buckwheat middlings, malt sprouts, dried brewers' grains, high grade distillers' grains and cottonseed meal.

ONLY ONE.

The Record in Bellefonte is a Unique One.

If the reader has a "bad back" or any kidney ill and is looking for relief and cure, better depend on the only remedy endorsed by people you know. Doan's Kidney Pills relieve quickly—cure permanently. Bellefonté citizens testify to this. Here is a case of it:

Mrs. Emma J. Davis of E. Logan St. Bellefonte, Pa. says; I have a great deal of confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills, and have already recommended them in a published testimonial in 1897. I told how I had been relieved of kidney complaint and backache which had kept me suffering for years. Doan's Kidney Pills did this for me when other remedies had failed. Whenever I feel any symptom of my old trouble I send to F. Potts Green's drug store for a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills and it never requires more than a few doses to get me right."

The Spirit of Winter.

The Spirit of Winter is with us, making its presence known in many different ways—sometimes by cheery sunshine and glistening snows, and sometimes by driving winds and blinding storms. To many people it seems to take a delight in making bad things worse, for rheumatism twists harder, twinges sharper, catarrh becomes more annoying, and the many symptoms of scrofula are developed and aggravated. There is not much poetry in this, but there is truth, and it is a wonder that more people don't get rid of these ailments. The medicine that cures them—Hood's Sarsaparilla—is easily obtained and there is abundant proof that its cures are radical and permanent.

How to Avoid Pneumonia.

You can avoid pneumonia and other serious results from a cold by taking Foley's Honey and Tar. It stops the cough, heals the lungs, and expels the cold from the system. Refuse any but the genuine in the yellow package sold by Green's Pharmacy.

How To Avoid Appendicitis

Most victims of appendicitis are those who are habitually constipated. Foley's Orino Laxative cures chronic constipation by stimulating the liver and bowels and restores the natural action of the bowels. Foley's Orino Laxative does not nauseate or gripe and is mild and pleasant to take. Refuse substitutes. C. M. Parrish.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

FIERCE FIGHT AT RIDGEWAY

Believe Mrs. Tozier Defended Herself With Razor.

JEALOUSY THE CAUSE

Elk County Anthorities Think Women Quarreled Over a Man, Whom They Went to Find.

HOUSE WAS BURNED OVER HEAD

Ridgway, Jan 23.—That Mrs. Mary Tozier fought for her life with a razor as her only weapon against a heavy woodsman's axe in the hands of her jealous friend and companion, only to be finally struck down and left to die, while the house was burned over her head to conceal the crime, is the verdict of the coroner in the Johnsonburg murder mystery that has stirred Elk county to its depths.

Tuesday night Mrs. Mary Dudack, the alleged slayer, reiterated her statement in the county jail that she was innocent, and that she had been driven from her own house by the murdered woman, who threatened to kill her after she had refused to harbor any longer a young man who had been living there. The question of which woman was to have the man is believed to have been the cause of the fatal quarrel.

Mrs. Tozier's charred body was found in the ruins of the building in which she and Mrs. Dudack had been living. The structure was destroyed by fire early Monday morning. When the body was removed from the ruins the razor and axe were found right beside it, as gruesome evidence that a crime had been committed. The county authorities are now devoting their efforts to finding the young man, whose name Mrs. Dudack stubbornly refuses to divulge.

A Fine Gasser Tapped.

The Hammersley Fork region of Potter and Clinton counties is not a little excited over a producing gas well that was tapped a few days ago. The well is owned by J. S. Hull and A. A. Bennett. Despite all effort to plug the flow the pressure is so heavy that $300 worth of gas is going to waste every 24 hours. The Coudersport Enterprise says there is talk of piping the gas to Lock Haven, Jersey Shore and Williamsport, but that it is generally understood that the towns of Costello and Austin are first to be supplied. The gas was tapped at 700 feet. The gasser is eight miles southeast of Wharton, and near the Clinton county line, and is the second well in that field to come in a producer, the first tapped some time ago, and now capped, being a hole of good showing. More wells are to be drilled immediately, so as to test out the field. Drillers who have had experience in tried gas fields say that the Hammersley field, both in physical formation and scope, in their judgment, will prove a very substantial one.

Do You Think For Yourself?

Or, do you open your mouth like a young bird and gulp down whatever food or medicine may be offered you?

If you are an intelligent thinking woman, in need of relief from weakness, nervousness, pain and suffering, then it means much to you that there is one tried and true honest medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION, sold by druggists for the cure of woman's ills.

The makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for the cure of weak, nervous, run-down, over-worked, debilitated, pain-racked women, knowing this medicine to be made up of ingredients, every one of which has the strongest possible indorsement of the leading and standard authorities of the several schools of practice, are perfectly willing, and in fact, are only too glad to print, as they do, the formula, or list of ingredients, of which it is composed, in plain English, on every bottle-wrapper.

The formula of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will bear the most critical examination of medical experts, for it contains no alcohol, narcotics, harmful, or habit-forming drugs, and no agent enters into it that is not highly recommended by the most advanced and leading medical teachers and authorities of their several schools of practice. These authorities recommend the ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the cure of exactly the same ailments for which this world-famed medicine is advised.

No other medicine for woman's ills has any such professional endorsement as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has received, in the unqualified recommendation of each of its several ingredients by scores of leading medical men of all the schools of practice. Is such an endorsement not worthy of your consideration?

A booklet of ingredients, with numerous authorative profesional endorsements by the leading medical authorities of this country, will be mailed free to any one sending name and address with request for same. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Old Feather Beds.

Make a thin cotton batting pad—or use an old one if you have it—the size of the feather bed to be used. Lay the pad on a quilt frame, or the dining table will do. Lay the feather bed on the pad and smooth or level the feathers all out so that they will be divided evenly, then fasten the edges of the pad and bed together with pins. Get a long needle and some strong cord—common wrapping cord will do—and tie as you would a comfort, but not too close, about the same as a mattress is tied. After you have the pad and bed tied overcast the edges together and you will have a nice feather mattress almost as soft as a hair mattress.

This is Worth Remembering.

Whenever you have a cough or cold, just remember that Foley's Honey and Tar will cure it. Do not risk your health by taking any but the genuine. It is in a yellow package. Sold by C. M. Parrish.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend

Nor Any Other Creature.

By Ina Wright Hanson.

Copyrighted, 1907, by C. H. Sutcliffe.

Looking up from a long drawn reverie before the unfinished picture on my easel, I saw Iolanthe beaming at me from the doorway.

"Come on!" she cried. "Put up your work and come with me into the country. I believe you don't even know it is May day. Don't you remember 'the month of May, when the air is so full of sweetness and love that even one shaving begins to feel an affection for another shaving?' Come, let us a-Maying go."

"I can't," I answered. "I'm up against it. I'm crowded to the wall. I'm broke."

Iolanthe laughed—the sweetest sound in this wise old world.

"I had an intuition so, but that doesn't matter. This is my treat. You see, Isabel Dory took me to dinner yesterday, so I have enough to take us picnicking today. Come, brave knight, put on thy helmet and hasten."

I hastened. No one could resist Iolanthe. I took her little covered basket, and we went along the hall and down the stairs, with mock-doleful messages following us from our fellow workers, who were not going out into the blooming May day world.

"What car are we going to take?" I asked as we reached the street.

Iolanthe blushed deliciously.

"We are not going to take a car. You see, I got so interested in buying a 'scrumptious' lunch that I forgot about the car, and"—

"I see," I said gravely. "And you don't know how glad I am that we are to walk. It is so much healthier. Then we won't have to mingle with the plebeians on a common car. When rich aristocrats like us"—

Iolanthe glanced up at me rather sharply, I thought. It couldn't be that she knew—of course she couldn't know. No one knew but my uncle's lawyer and myself, and maybe my uncle. I wondered if my uncle did know in that unknown country he had lately entered. By and by I should tell Iolanthe that, when the preliminaries were over, I should have enough money to buy her everything she wanted, even if on this blithe day I had not a penny, and all due to a never known rich old uncle, now dead. But Iolanthe was proud, so first I would win her promise—win it while she believed me poor as herself.

WE ATE OUR "SCRUMPTIOUS" LUNCH.

Purity and courage and gentleness and beauty—that was my Iolanthe. Mine? Ah, when our May day was over, should I be calling her mine?

"Who are you today?" she asked, stopping to fill her lungs with the buoyant air.

We had a habit of playing we were other folks when we went on these excursions—childish no doubt, but we were never going to grow old, we said, so it was best to be children a long time.

"Why, I am King Cophetua," I answered promptly, with a great inflating of my kingly chest and throwing back of my kingly head as we walked on.

"Her arms across her breast she laid;
She was more fair than words can say.
In robe and crown the king stept down
To meet and greet her on her way."

"Who are you today, Iolanthe?"

"It's a pretty story," she mused, not answering my question, "but suppose it were turned around. Suppose that it were Queen Cophetua and the beggar man. Would he be good and let her love him? And would he be willing to sit on the throne with her?"

"Oh, that's different!" I said. "Of course a man could not take favors from a woman. The beggar man would have to go out into the world and win his fortune. He couldn't take it from his queen. You know he couldn't, don't you, Iolanthe?"

"No, I don't know anything about it," she said a bit crossly. But Iolanthe never could stay cross long enough to make it pay, so in a moment she was talking merrily again.

Presently we reached the spot we were bound for, a spot of sun and shade and running water and new spring flowers. We ate our "scrumptious" lunch, and then we sang and talked and had long spells of social silence, and all the while I was wondering how I should make her say "yes" if at first she happened to say "no."

"I am going to tell you a pretty story," she remarked after one of these silences. "It's a true one too. I am invited and so are you, and you'll go, won't you?"

"Oh, sure!" I answered recklessly. "Where?"

"A reception tomorrow evening to meet the richest girl you ever saw She has so much money she doesn't know what to do with it all, but folks have just found it out. She has pretended to be poor for reasons. We're both going because you said you would."

"I would do anything or go anywhere to please you, little girl," I answered with so much meaning that Iolanthe flushed and her dear eyes wavered before my gaze. I don't know quite how it happened, but suddenly I had my dream in my arms—my unresisting, perfect, red lipped dream—and I was quite mad with delight.

Then presently she cried out that I must never let anything come between us.

"'Nor height nor depth nor any other creature,'" I said reverently.

"'Nor any other creature,'" she repeated after me and made me say it every little while all the rest of that wonderful day, and I did not tell her about my fortune after all, though I had intended to. When you come to think of it, money is a sordid thing to discuss when two folks are quaffing nectar and nibbling ambrosia.

The next evening I went to the reception and was presented to the lady of riches. It seemed to me that all the room hushed its breath and waited while we two went through what was required of us. It seemed to me that I lived an eon before we were free from the great eye of the room and in some place where there were a splash of water and quiet and heavy perfume of flowers. There in the dim light she stood, slender as an English laburnum tree, swaying in her yellow silken robes toward me. Her hands, weighted with jewels, were held out to me. Her mouth that I had kissed was smiling at me—was saying:

"'Nor any other creature!'"

I stood there staring at this wonderful new Iolanthe, and all I could think of and all I said was:

"Barefooted came the beggar maid,
Before the king Cophetua!"

Which, considering the circumstances, could hardly have been more absurd.

Iolanthe's laugh rang out; then she came closer to me, and her eyes grew very grave.

"Dearest," she whispered, "I was too rich to be happy, and so I ran away from everybody and went to work in the studio. I wanted to accomplish something. I wanted folks to say, 'She is a great painter,' not 'She is the richest girl in the country.' Then I found you, and—and—I didn't care any more for fame, because I wanted something greater, love—your love—and—you said 'Nor any other creature,' you know you did!"

"And meant it, too, my angel!" I exclaimed, coming out of my trance and taking her hands in mine. "You shall give me all the money you think I need, and I will sit on the throne with you like a good little man."

"I am so glad you are going to be sensible!" she said fervently.

And then I had to explain to her why I was laughing.

No Use For a Pessimist.

Freddie and his mother were having a thoroughly satisfactory romp when a visitor was announced. As one topic of conversation after another came up it developed that the caller was in an extraordinarily pessimistic frame of mind and expressed her disapproval in no measured terms of everything and everybody under discussion.

This impartial "knocking" disturbed Freddie's amiable soul mightily, and he slowly drew nearer and nearer until he finally stood before the lady, with his small face puckered and the corners of his mouth drawn down.

She stopped in the midst of an "Oh, a dreadful bore, my dear!" to say:

"Why, Freddie, please do unscrew your face. I don't like to see little boys look like that."

Freddie surveyed her for a moment and then said trenchantly, but with an obviously sincere wish for information:

"I guess you don't like most anything, do you?"—New York Times.

A Bad Shot.

A hot headed Irishman accidentally insulted an equally hot headed Frenchman, who insisted on fighting a duel with the Hibernian to wipe out the slight. The Irishman suggested that the two of them should each draw a card from a pack, and the one who drew the lowest was to go into an adjoining room and blow his brains out. The Frenchman demurred at first, but finally fell in with the idea, and the two opponents drew out the cards, one of which was bound to carry death in its wake. The Irishman drew the lowest card, and, with a smile, he charged his revolver and betook himself off to a small anteroom to complete the tragedy. Presently a loud report rang out, and the white faced people ran wildly to the little anteroom, fully expecting to see the Irishman a gory corpse. Instead he came coolly along the passage to meet them, and as they stared wonderingly at him he cried:

"Begorra, Oi missed meself!"

Peculiar "Cure Stones."

Occupying an isolated position on the moors about five or six miles above Penzance, in Cornwall, a peculiar trio of stones is to be seen. They are arranged in a straight line, the two outside ones being four feet high and upright, while the center one is a little lower, but much wider. In the last mentioned there is a round hole large enough to admit of a man passing through. This pile is known as the "Men-an-tol," or "holed stone." Popular tradition states that any one crawling through the hole in the center stone will be forever immune from rheumatism and allied complaints. In times gone by the country people used to bring their children to the holed stone and pass them through.—Strand Magazine.

BRIEF MENTION

Short Items of Local Interest Gathered By The Way Side

—Ambition is the father of Success.

—Never be discouraged, always push ahead.

—The last few days has been good weather for the ice man.

—The ferret owned by Lauderbach-Barber & Co., will be seen no more as a dog killed it Monday morning.

—Dr. Jones who has been in a very critical condition at the Bellefonte hospital for the last few days is a little better.

—Out of 683 scholars enrolled in the Bellefonte public schools 343 were neither absent or tardy during the month of December.

—Pure sugar table syrup at 40, 50 and 60 cents, and New Orleans molasses that makes 'em all talk. Sechler & Co.

—Mr. Robert Hunter is now suffering with considerable pain the result of having had four large molar teeth drawn the other day.

—An engine and sixteen cars were wrecked at Vineyard on Wednesday evening which delayed the passenger train due here at 8:20 until 10:45

—The Band of Hope, an organization of the A. M. E. church, will hold a leap year supper at that church on February 6th. You are cordially invited to be present.

—Michael Lamb has been given the contract to paint the street mail boxes and will begin work as soon as the necessary material arrives which is furnished by the government.

—The officers of the Bellefonte Trust company were entertained at a delightful banquet at the Brockerhoff house on Tuesday. The whole was a very pleasant affair and was highly enjoyed by all.

—A good deal of talk on base ball is being heard in nearby towns, but how about Bellefonte. Wake up boys and start the base ball fever early. You only have a few months to wait until the season will be here.

—Mrs. William Dawson recently purchased from the Lieb estate the property on Spring street now occupied by Dr. John Sebring and family. The price paid was four thousand dollars. The Dawson's expect to occupy the house themselves after April first.

—Howard Woodring, who had been in charge of the Western Union telegraph office here the past month became so sick last Saturday he could not work and on Wednesday of this week was taken to his home in Delaware. Mr. Whiteman, of Osceola Mills, is now in charge.

—Edward Woods, mail carrier on the West ward route, is just entering upon his fourteenth year of service and in al that time he had never been late one single time in reporting for duty at the postoffice; while he always covers his route as quickly as possible after he gets out of the office.

—Miss Jennie Hassell, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Frank Montgomery, on east Linn street, fell down stairs one day last week and hurt her shoulder so badly that she has since been confined to bed and under the care of a trained nurse. Fortunately, however, no bones were broken.

—The Maccabees had an attendance of over fifty Thursday night at their special meeting in their fine new hall in the McClain Block when several candidates were put through the ceremonies in fine form. Great preparations are planned for the smoker to formerly open their new rooms and dedicate them on Feb. 5.

—Sim, The Clothier is having new clothing cabinets put in his store, which greatly enhance the appearance of his rooms. The cabinets referred to are well finished and are great labor saving devices as one can see at a glance. They also enable Sim to keep his suits in better condition and keep off a great amount of dust. Sim is an up-to-date clothier and we like to note these improvements.

—Montgomery and Company installed a new cash register in their store on Wednesday to take the place of their former register. The new register is probably the best obtainable, the mechanism in it is wonderful, and the appearance of the machine adds much to the beauty of the store. It contains separate drawers for nine clerks and when used correctly avoids the numerous mistakes which generally occur without a register. This machine will, of course, take some time to understand its operations exactly as it is a very complex piece of machinery. It is, however, as good a cash register as can be had and it took some long green to obtain it, but Montgomery and Company always try to get the best. They are to be congratulated.

—Vice is attractive at the start but ruinous in the end.

—The school of the street usually means a ruined child.

—Wallace Markle cut his foot badly on Thursday morning.

—The chicken thieves are active at Philipsburg. Better take good care of yours.

—Cheer up! The lengthening days already cast their twilight stretches toward the awakening spring.

—Quite a number of our young men who were looking forward to leap year as a coming joy are finding out that they've been stung.

—Remember the Hospital benefit and Recital to be given by Dr. Thomas C. VanTries in the Court House on Friday evening Jan 21, 1908.

—Men say women never know where generosity ends and extravagance begins; women say men do not know the end of economy from the beginning of miserliness.

—In traveling the path that leads to success we oft times have to travel over rough and strong ways, but when we once again strike the good and level ways we enjoy them so much the better.

—Dr. Edwin Erle Sparks of Chicago, but who was recently elected president of The Pennsylvania State College, lectured before the students at that institution last evening on "Robert Morris, the Unknown Patriot."

—If you would like to succeed in this world you will have to persevere and always study to learn more. The world has need of men who are industrious, capable and willing. If you are, alright; but if you aren't, you had better get to be one soon.

—Strange, but true, there is a prominent family in Clearfield, residents for more than fifty years, who have never burned a pound of coal in their house, either for cooking or heating purposes, and the house is well supplied with stoves. They burn wood entirely.

—After an illness of about one week John Dolph, who was a resident of Philipsburg about 18 or 20 years ago, died of pneumonia at 10 o'clock Friday morning at Kerrmoor, aged about 68 years. Deceased was engaged in lumbering, a business which he was engaged in while in Philipsburg.

—A. Miles Arney, who at one time was superintendent of the Bellefonte Electric company in this place, but who is now located at Niagara Falls, has had quite a siege of illness and a week or so ago was so bad that his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B H. Arney, of Centre Hall, were sent for, is now improved to that extent that he is believed to be out of danger.

—Excavators are hard at work digging down the rocky hillside along south Water street to make foundation for Forrest Bullock's new blacksmith and wagon-making shop. And it is proving no small job, either, as the rock is so hard that it has to be blasted loose, and to do this with buildings in such close proximity requires considerable care.

—John Porter Lyon has given up his lease on the rooms in the Bush Arcade where his garage is now located to take effect April first. Though he very likely has a place in view he has not yet made public where he intends locating. In this connection it might be stated that there are rumors of two more garages to be opened up in Bellefonte in the spring.

—Al. Irvin of Howard in getting off the station at that place picked up the wrong valise and did not know it till he got off the train. There were two grips placed together, one of which was Mr. Irvin's, and he, in mistake took the wrong one. As soon as he noticed the mistake he telephoned to the station at Bellefonte and had matters fixed up all right.

—Mr. Pat T. Toner died at the Bellefonte hospital Sunday morning from cancer and dropsy. Deceased was well known in this vicinity having lived here the greater part of his life. He had been at the poor house for a number of years and Mr. Thos. Howley had his body taken there Monday morning. The funeral services were held Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

—Dr. J. Allison Platts, Gen. James A. Beaver, William P. Humes, James Harris and Charles E. Gilmore were recently elected delegates to represent the Bellefonte Presbyterian church at the Men's Missionary convention to be held in Philadelphia February 11th—13th. It is expected that this will be one of the largest gatherings in the interest of missions ever held in this country.

—We note the sudden death last Wednesday, of Morris K. Jesup of New York City, President of the Chamber of Commerce, also of the American Sunday School Union, at the same time, also connected with other public and philanthropic institutions. Mr. Crittenden, the Society's Missionary, informed us that it is a notable fact keenly realized that within the first month of this new year, 1908, the two leading members have been summoned from the new home of the American Sunday School Union on Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, to "dwell in the house of the Lord forever," Rev. James M. Crowell, D. D. Secretary, and Morris K. Jesup, President.

—The smallest snake can cause a great deal of pain by its sting.

—The more you try to please some people the harder they are to please.

—Master Joseph Katz, son of William Katz, is threatened with appendicitis.

—The best way to accomplish any thing is to get at it in real earnestness. Just try it once.

—Many of the disappointments of this life are caused by the habit of trying to get something for nothing.

—The last couple days looked good to the ice man, but they undoubtedly made the remainder of us feel icy.

—Some persons have the "artistic temperament," and some are rude and impolite merely from choice.

—Frank Crissman says his last pair of trousers was one of those "salt and pepper" kind,—they were good for two seasons.

—The man who has never done anything that he feels ashamed of has something lacking in his sense of shame.

—The habits of our associates will have a great influence in the moulding and shaping of our lives—"As we live, so must we die."

—This is an age of specialism. One tool cannot do all kinds of work well, neither can one man do all things well—he must specialize.

—That the pleasure and enjoyment which one may be able to obtain from many things are today marred or ruined by rules of etiquette and fashion.

—The many friends of W. Harrison Walker will be pleased to hear that he is able to be around again after having been confined to his home for several days.

—Friday afternoon while James Harsberger, an efficient clerk in Krumrine's drug store, was strolling along Water street the gentle breezes bore his cap away and carefully deposited it in the cool and crystal waters of Spring Creek.

—The Women's Guild of the St. John's Episcopal church will hold an exchange every Saturday during February in P. D. Shafler's store, commencing Feb. 1, at 11 o'clock a. m. Bred, cakes, pies, desserts, candies and baked beans will be one sale. Any orders left with Mrs. W. H. Wilkinson will be filled.

—A very fast and exciting game of basket ball was played at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday afternoon between the State College Grammer School and the Junior Y. M. C. A. team. The game was witnessed by a large crowd most of them being the parents and friends of the players. The State team played a good game but were unable to get ahead o our boys who played great basket ball.

—For excitement, fast play and genuine, hard fought basketball, last evening's game between Williamsport High School and the Bellefonte Academy would be hard to beat. The teams are about as evenly matched as it is possible to get them. They have met twice, High School winning last evening by a score of 21 to 20, at Williamsport and Bellefonte winning here by a score of 30 to 28. Everyone playing a good game.

—The Crystal Palace Cafe, which was formerly owned by Jesse Cox, changed hands on Tuesday afternoon and will hereafter be conducted by Mr. Chas. Moerschbacher. Mr. Moerschbacher expects to make some improvements in the near future, one of which will be to place the kitchen floor on the same level as the dining room floor. The consideration is stated as being $4,000. Just what Jesse intends to do now is not known but he very likely has his eye on something.

Mrs. Robert Ward Dead.

One of the saddest deaths of the season occurred on Tuesday when the life of Mrs. Robert ward was taken away. She was born at Rock on April 13, 1883 and when she was 17 or 18 years old, she and her mother moved to Bellefonte. Since that time she has resided in this community, and has made many friends. She became a christian early in life and united herself with the United Brethren church. She was married in this town about six years ago to Mr. Robert Ward, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Brown at the Evangelical church. To this happy union were born four children, three of which are living; Lily, Austin and Robert. The fourth died soon after being born and will be buried with its mother, the two to be buried in the same coffin. This sad and untimely death has brought deep grief upon the many friends of the deceased. Surviving her are the children named above, her husband and her mother, Mrs. Emily Brown.

MACHINE SHOPS CLOSED.

Orders Issued Shutting Them Down Until Monday Next.

The depression in the world of industry and more especially the short working time in the Pennsylvania railroad company's shops has been the talk of the people of the city for the past several weeks. The hopes for the brightening up of times were given a rude jolt yesterday afternoon when orders were issued through the office of Superintendent of Motive Power R. N. Durborrow shutting down work in the Altoona machine shops until next Monday morning. A thousand or more men are effected by the order and the reason assigned for the suspension of operation is to reduce expenses for the present month.

The orders were posted in the several departments of the Altoona machine shops during the afternoon, about 2 o'clock. They caused some excitement among the men and no sooner had they left their work at 4 o'clock that the suspension of work scattered all over the city. It became circulated that the entire system of shops would be closed down for the remainder of the week and this caused much excitement in all sections of the city. At the office of Superintendent Durborow it was stated that only the Altoona machine shops would be closed down on all class repairs to locomotives. The desire to reduce the operating expenses of the motive power department for the month of January was given as the cause of the suspension.

The freight traffic over the Pennsylvania continues unimproved and only about half the business of a few months ago is being moved over the road. As a result of a depression in the movement of freight traffic some forty extra men were suspended in the Altoona yard Monday and two crews operating between that city and Hollidaysburg were laid off duty.

The Pittsburg division is also feeling the effects of the slackness in the freight movement. The force of engineers running on the division was cut down a couple of days ago by the demotion of sixty-nine engineers to firemen and 130 firemen were indefinitely suspended. A number of trainmen have also been suspended on the division.

The Roney Boys.

A delightful entertainment was given in Petrikin Hall by "Roney's Boys" of Chicago. This company had been widely advertised but the boys made good every thing said in advance. In the various choruses the boys appeared in the following costumes, military, cotta and cassock, mexican, sailor and Highland scottish.

Master Gieser made a great hit as a trombone soloist as did also Masters Pearson and Dyer, as vocal soloists. The general expression was one of surprise that boys so young could be trained to handle such difficult music and present such an excellent stage presence.

The only thing to regret about the concert is that the hall was only half filled and the Association lost $17 on the venture. Is it not some thing of a reflection on our townspeople to report, that out of eight high class entertainments given in Bellefonte during the past two years by the Y. M. C. A, only three have more than paid expenses?
